Helen Jacobs Beats Old Favourite

CHILEAN ACE TRIUMPHS OVER MARY HEELEY

London, Yesterday.

Sunny weather favoured the continuation of the Wimbledon Lawn Tennis Championships yesterday following the heavy rainfall on Friday, and the stands round the centre-court were crammed to capacity to witness Fred Perry, the singles champion, give a light-hearted display against C. E. Malfroy, the New Zealand Davis Cup player, whom he beat 6—2, 6—2, 6—4, to enter the quarter-finals.

Miss Helen Jacobs, America's strongest challenger for the Ladies' Singles title, entered the Fourth Round at the expense of Countess Valdene, the former Senorita D'Alvarez, whom she beat 6—4, 6—3, while Senorita Anita Lizana (Chile), who is making her second appearance in the All-England Championships, accounted for Miss Mary Heeley, the former British Wightman Cup player, by 6—3, 6—3.

Frau. Marie Luise Horn (Germany), conqueror of Mrs. Fabyan, won her Third Round encounter, beating Mlle. Couquerque (Holland) by 6—3, 6—0.—Reuter.

WORLD TITLE BOUT

German Promoters Active

JACOBS OFFERED $150,000 TO RELINQUISH RIGHTS

"SUNDAY HERALD" SPECIAL

Berlin, Yesterday.

That German boxing promoters are extremely anxious to hold the Schmeling-Braddock world championship bout in Germany is evidenced from the fact that the American promoter Mike Jacobs, who already has a contract with the two boxers, has been offered a sum of $150,000 if he relinquishes his rights.

In a radio telegram addressed to a Berlin paper Max Schmeling declared himself confident that he would win the world heavyweight title a second time by defeating Braddock, and expressed the hope that the efforts to secure the big fight for Germany would be successful.—Trans-Ocean Service.

DEMOCRATIC PARTY CANDIDATE

ROOSEVELT FORMALLY NOMINATED

GREAT ENTHUSIASM AT CONVENTION

Philadelphia, Yesterday.

President Roosevelt has been formally nominated as the Democratic Party's candidate for the Presidency.

Later: The greatest precautions are being taken to protect President Roosevelt when he arrives this evening to deliver a speech of acceptance of nomination at a colossal open-air meeting.

Secrecy is being maintained regarding the station or the hour of his arrival. Seven hundred police armed with rifles, machine-guns and tear-gas bombs have been ordered out.

Sixty speakers seconded Judge Mack's nomination of President Roosevelt. The monotony was broken by the Hawaiian delegates, who rendered musical honours with ukeleles. The Covention finally adjourned in the early hours of the morning.

CONDITIONS IN PALESTINE

Two Communiques Issued

TRAIN DERAILED

London, Yesterday.

Two communiques were issued yesterday by the High Commissioner in Palestine. An earlier official statement recorded that at about 6 a.m. large band of Arabs armed with rifles attacked a party of telephone linesmen, who were escorted by a military party, near Ain Sinya on the Nablus road. Reinforcements arrived from Ramallah. After about an hour's firing the Arabs retreated to the hills, where troops are still in pursuit of them. They were carrying three of their number. Two soldiers were wounded.

In the Southern district, while empty passenger-coaches were being taken to Lydda, an engine and two coaches were derailed. One military escort was unfortunately killed in the derailment. The train was fired at and attacked by a party of Arabs, who retired when one of their number was wounded and captured. The driver and fireman of the engine were severely scalded and another soldier and a railwayman were injured.

In a later communique the High Commissioner announced with regret that the engine-driver, who was an Arab, had died of his injuries.—British Wireless Service.

RECORD HELD FOR A DAY

Danish Girl Betters 1,500 Metres Mark

Copenhagen, Yesterday.

Grethe Frederiksen established a world swimming record for the 1,500 Metres Free Style distance, clocking 22 minutes 36-7/10 seconds to beat Mrs. Lenore Kight-Wingard's one day old mark of 22 minutes 39-1/5 secs.—Reuter.

A Reuter's message from New York received here on Friday night stated that Mrs. Lenore Kight-Wingard, who was only recently married, beat her own world record for the mile Free Style by clocking 24 minutes 7-1/5 seconds, as against her previous figures of 24 minutes 20-2/5 seconds. In the same race she covered 1,500 metres in 22 minutes 39-1/5 seconds to beat Helene Madison's previous world mark of 23 minutes 17-1/5 seconds.

PUBLIC WORKS IN FRANCE

Huge Appropriations Needed

LOANS TO BE RAISED

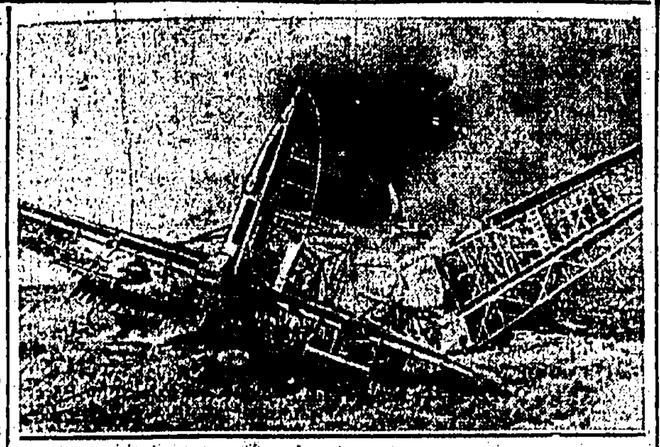
"SUNDAY HERALD" SPECIAL

Paris, Yesterday.

A sum of 20,000,000,000 francs, spread over three years, will, according to the Socialist organ Populaire, be demanded by the French Government in order to carry out a vast programme of public works destined to combat unemployment and stimulate economic activity. The paper states that besides this sum the Government will have at its disposal the credit passed by the previous Chamber for a similar purpose at the request of the former Minister of Labour, M. Marquet, so that a total of 8,000,000,000 francs will be available annually.

The Government hopes to raise half this amount, according to the paper, before the end of the present year by means of medium-term and long-term loans. In the meantime the Treasury will be asked to advance 500,000,000.—Trans-Ocean Service.

Alfred Padgham, above, winner of three major professional golf tournaments this year, and who was one stroke behind John Adams and Henry Cotton at the end of the Third Round, won the British Open Golf Championship yesterday at Hoylake.



After he had climbed 500 feet on his American Airlines trip from Chicago to Detroit, Pilot Ed. Coates saw smoke pouring out of the baggage compartment of his tri-motored ship. He turned to his passengers, R. A. Alpalo, of Detroit and W. C. Carnegie, of Chicago, and warned them to jump as soon as the ship touched ground. He raced back to the airport. The passengers tumbled out, unhurt. Coates brought the ship to a standstill, then leaped. As he cleared, a gas tank exploded. Coates was badly burned, but will survive.

ALFRED PADGHAM WINS BRITISH OPEN

RUNNER-UP LAST YEAR SECURES TITLE BY ONE STROKE

Hoylake, Yesterday.

Beaten into second place by four strokes by Alfred Perry in last year's British Open, Alfred Padgham to-day won the title by one stroke from John Adams, the newly crowned Scottish Open champion. Henry Cotton, the 1934 winner, tied for third place with Dellemagne of France.

The following were the final standings:

	Last 18	Agg.
Alfred Padgham	71	287
John Adams	73	288
Gene Sarazen	73	291
Green	75	291
Percy Alliss	71	291
Dallemagne	69	289
Henry Cotton	74	289
Reginald Whitcombe	74	294
Bobbie Locke	74	294
Arthur Lacey	72	294
Rees	75	295
Burton	72	296
Hector Thomson	74	299
Smithers	74	299

Charles Whitcombe	72	300

W. J. Branch	82	305
Jack McLean	77	306
Sam King	76	306
Archie Compston	77	310
Jim Ferrier	80	310
Alfred Perry (holder)	79	311

Cotton went out in 36 and then blew up, taking 39 for the homeward nine.

Adams was most unlucky. He was wanting two fours for a tie when he was bunkered at the seventeenth, and at the eighteenth his putt hit the hole and stayed out, thus costing him the right to a play-off with Padgham.

Jim Ferrier's drive at the twelfth hit and killed a lark, which was picked up by a spectator with a view to stuffing it and presenting it to the club.

Alfred Perry, who started off shakily with a brace of 76's, returned 80 and was thereby certain of losing the title he won last year by four strokes from Alfred Padgham.

There was a record crowd for the Championship and it is estimated that 25,000 watched the final rounds.

"CATASTROPHE" PROVES TO BE BEST STORY OF THE YEAR

Interesting Facts

"Catastrophe," by that well-known local writer Phyllis Juby, has proved to be the outstanding fictional story of the year in Hong Kong. So realistic was it that four of the leading Chinese papers reprinted it word for word on the Monday following the first instalment, and even the Shanghai papers took up the "story" in serious vein, it eventually coming back to roost in the columns of a morning contemporary last Thursday!

DISTURBING SCENES IN TSINGTAO

ASSAILANTS REPULSED BY POLICE

SEQUEL TO FIRING ON JAPANESE SHIPS BY CUSTOMS CRUISERS

TSINGTAO, YESTERDAY.

A MOB OF 700 JAPANESE ATTEMPTED TO SEIZE THE CUSTOMS BUILDINGS AND FOUGHT FOR HALF AN HOUR WITH THE JAPANESE CONSULAR POLICE HERE YESTERDAY. THE POLICE FINALLY DISPERSED THEM, AFTER WHICH THE REMNANTS MADE TOWARDS THE HOME OF MR. CAMPBELL, CUSTOMS COMMISSIONER, WHICH THEY TRIED TO RUSH.

Waving flags and shouting "Down with Campbell!" the mob marched towards the Commissioner's house, but were repulsed by a strong cordon of Japanese police, who hastily surrounded the building. Others managed to reach the Customs building, but found that the officials had fled and the place was locked up.

Later: The Japanese destroyer Kiku has arrived at Tangku from Fort Arthur, bringing a Staff Officer, Lieutenant-Commander Ohnishi, to investigate the Chikuo and Tsingtao incidents. —Reuter.

Later: Carrying tins of kerosene and gasoline with which to set fire to the premises, the mob of Japanese marched to the Customs building, but were prevented from carrying out their mission by the Japanese Consular police. The demonstrators threw bricks at the building and broke a few windows.

The incident is the result of the high feeling aroused by the alleged attacks on Japanese vessels by Customs cruisers. —Reuter.

JAPANESE PROTESTS

Nanking, later: A member of the Japanese Embassy staff verbally protested to the Foreign Office against the Chikuo and Tsingtao incidents. He drew attention to the alleged insults to the Japanese flag and pointed out that these were intolerable.—Reuter.

NEW INCIDENT

Cavalry Horses In Wrong Lines

Peiping, Yesterday.

A fresh Sino-Japanese incident occurred yesterday, when a Chinese detachment recovered four Chinese cavalry horses which had strayed into the Japanese barracks at Fengtai, near Peiping. Chinese sources deny the Japanese allegation that a Japanese officer sent from Peiping to investigate the matter was taken prisoner.

The Japanese military headquarters in Tientsin is taking up the matter with General Sung Cheh-yuan.—Reuter.

COURT OF ENQUIRY ADJOURNS

Peiping, Yesterday.

At the Court of Enquiry into the death of a Japanese, allegedly at the hands of three British soldiers, which opened yesterday, the Crown Advocate regretted that he was unable to produce more witnesses to-day and requested an adjournment till Monday morning. The request was granted.—Reuter.

An earlier message said that a court of enquiry into the death of Kisaku Sasaki, a Japanese officer whose body was found on the streets of Peiping, was opened by Mr. N. Fitzmaurice, the British Consul, at the British Embassy on Friday morning, when three British soldiers, Herbert Cooke, T. D. Parrish, and Ralph Hunt, were summoned for being concerned in disturbances on the night of May 26-27, the night Sasaki met his death. Mr. W. Priestwood, the Crown Advocate, appeared in the role of prosecutor, while Mr. P. H. B. Kent, of Tientsin, represented the defendants.

SHORT STORY

OVER THE GARDEN WALL

By MADELINE KOHLER

THE garden at the rear of the narrow house in the Rue de la Sorbonne was dappled with shadows at four o'clock in the afternoon. A sleepy gray cat lay on a bench against the weatherbeaten wall. The girl sitting at a round iron table beneath the plane tree chewed her pencil and from time to time put down figures in a red account book. Lucie Emery was a pretty girl by any standards, and would have been prettier if it were not for the frown of worriment between her brows.

Raising her head, she listened to the sound of a bell tinkling somewhere within the house, followed by an excited flow of French in the high nasal accents of Celestine, the housemaid. This, she thought with a sigh, would be old Marivaux wishing to be paid for last month's vegetables.

The door closed with a bang, and a moment later Celestine shuffled into view, her worn purple felt slippers making a slapping noise on the uneven flagstones.

"Je lui parle," she said, nodding angely. "I tell him to go peddle his feesh."

"Who?" said Lucie. "Was it Marivaux?"

"Mais non, Mademoiselle, an Englishman or American with a little satchel. They sell everything, these foreigners. Yesterday a man came with an electric barrel for beating rugs."

"A vacuum cleaner," smiled Lucie. "Mother would love that if we had electricity. Or," she added thoughtfully, "if we had any rugs. Has mother returned yet, Celestine?"

"I don't think—"

They were interrupted by a crashing sound, and a tweed-clad figure came over the wall, landing on the grass at their feet. The young man arose, recovered his briefcase from the shrubbery and made a low bow.

"A thousand pardons, Mademoiselle! Please forgive this intrusion. The lass from Marseilles refused to let me in the front door and I had to get in somehow."

"Sit down," said Lucie calmly, "and tell me what you wish—but please be brief."

"Thank you," said the young man.

"We do not require any magazines, soaps, or kitchen gadgets and we cannot afford central heating."

The young man sat down on the bench and took the gray cat on his lap. He was an open-faced young American with pleasant blue eyes which were now fastened upon the girl with obvious puzzlement.

"How did you know Celestine was from Marseilles?" she continued, embarrassed by his stare.

"She is exactly like her prototype, the femme de chambre at the Grand Hotel in that historic city—even to the blue petticoat showing the regulation half-inch. Is it not remarkable, Mademoiselle, that we sit here addressing each other in English?"

Lucie regarded him more closely. "Why remarkable? Surely that is your native language, Monsieur?"

"Of course. I come from St. Louis. But I expected—I was certainly led to believe that the members of this household were French. I have in my briefcase a prepared speech laboriously composed in French for this occasion—"

"By all means let us have it. It seems very hard for you to come to the point. You may leave us, Celestine; I will wrestle with this myself."

"Wrestle?" repeated the young man indignantly. He unfastened his briefcase and drew out a sheaf of papers. "As a matter of fact this communication is not addressed to you at all, but to your mother. She is Mrs. Lucette Emery?"

"Yes," Lucie's voice was startled. "But I will not have her annoyed with bills. You are a collector, perhaps?"

"I collect postage stamps," he said good-humouredly. "I do not collect anything else. Now, this speech starts out, 'Est-ce que je puis entrer?'"

"'May I come in?'" translated Lucie, dryly. "We seem to have gotten beyond that point. You say it is addressed to my mother?"

The young man thrust the papers back into his briefcase and snapped it shut. "Yes, but I would rather talk to you. After all, the matter is a little delicate and I do not know your mother."

He put the cat down upon the flagstones, squared his shoulders, and looked at her earnestly.

"I am the nephew of Monsieur Hercule Bertaud, a man whose mind moves in a straight line. He was born in Paris, but went to America at an early age to make his fortune. As a youth he was a student at St. Cyr Military School near Versailles."

"Yes?"

"Nearby at Versailles an old dame—pardon, Mademoiselle — a French lady of quality, one Madame Gericault, conducted a school for young ladies."

"Why, that would be the pensionnat my mother attended as a girl." Lucie's eyes were wide.

"Exactly. Once a month the students at St. Cyr were invited to Madame Gericault's establishment for a dance. My uncle, then 19, met and fell in love with a young French girl, Lucette Le Fevre, who was then about 16 years of age."

"A-ah! Did she reciprocate his affection?"

"She did. Soon the monthly meetings were not enough for them and the girl, your mother, used to meet my uncle by climbing over the garden wall."

"I can't imagine Mother doing it," said Lucie, shaking her head.

"They were in love. Their romance was brief, however, because in that first summer of their meeting the beautiful Lucette was withdrawn from the school. My uncle never forgot her."

"You mean he never married?"

"He never married. He went to America and after a considerable struggle made a large fortune."

"How?" inquired Lucie interestedly.

"Somewhat prosaically in bathtubs. My uncle, now retired, has come over here after all these years to seek his Lucette. In this he enlisted my help. A few days ago we located the ancient Gericault, miraculously still living among brittle ivory ornaments and faded portraits in a little house in the Rue Balzac."

"And she directed you here?"

"Yes. She said that Lucette had married a gallant American during the war, had been widowed, and was now back Paris."

"Which brings us right down to date," said Lucie thoughtfully. "Did the Gericault speak of me?"

"No. I was unprepared for you. The old lady's mind wanders. She mixes up the past and present. It was I who interviewed her and she had me confused with Uncle Hercule. She said, 'Go and take Lucette in your arms and hold her close—she will understand!'"

The girl moved back a little, confused by a twinkle in the bright blue eyes.

After a moment she said, "My father died when I was 12. We were living in New York and we remained there. Mother taught French in a private school. When the depression came, we returned to Paris because she had inherited this house. My mother has not had an easy time."

"She will have an easy time from now on," the young man said gently.

"She loved my father very much. This will all be—very confusing to her."

"That I doubt," he said briskly. "She is still young enough to enjoy life. My uncle, M. Bertaud, is the kindest of men and he has loved her all these years."

"You are very romantic, Mr.—?"

My name is Victor Bertaud. At college I was called Balmy Bertaud because of—"

"Because you were the Standford halfback who usually made a touchdown in the last three minutes of play, provided, of course, that the score was even. I have heard of you."

The young man bowed ironically.

"When," he asked, "may my uncle call upon your mother?"

Lucie considered. "On account of the pressure of the times," she said, "we have made this house over into a pension—or boarding house as you would perhaps call it. My mother and I run the house with the assistance of Celestine Geroux, late of Marseilles.

"I do not wish my mother to be disturbed or alarmed by this news you bring. It would be better that you both come here and domicile yourselves and lead gradually up to the matter at hand. My mother may have completely forgotten Monsieur Bertaud.

"Bring him here; let him live here a while. You say he has retired from his business. Let him take his time—not frighten Mama by telling her suddenly about all this."

"My uncle is a very rich man," he said. "He does not travel alone. He has a secretary, a valet, a chauffeur, a masseur and two or three other underlings, including me. He has even brought along a jockey from his stables to watch the races."

Lucie's eyes shone. "That is all the better. We have plenty of room for all. We have at the moment only old Professor Delacroix and he can easily be moved to the attic room. It is finished off."

"I will have to take the matter under advisement," stiffly.

"Very well. If you will excuse me now, I have some figuring to do."

Lucie turned to her account book, Celestine Geroux came briskly forward, and before he quite knew what was happening to him Victor Bertaud was being shown out through the front door.

When Lucie's mother arrived a little later, looking flushed and pretty from her walk in the Luxembourg gardens, the good lady exclaimed, "Mon Dieu, child, you will ruin your eyes in this light! What on earth has come over you?"

Happily, Lucie showed to Lucette Emery columns of princely figures in parallel lines, and explained that a rich American was coming to rent their spare rooms. And then, presently, the girl asked:

"Mama, do you remember a girl named Lucette Le Fevre at Madame Gericault's school where you went years ago?"

"That one!" Her mother's voice expressed scorn. "Wild as a colt! How she did pull the wool over the mistresses' eyes! She would climb over the high school wall when she was supposed to be in bed and meet the boys in the lane. Often I lay awake trembling for her. Madame Gericault was so strict."

"Wasn't she caught finally?"

"To be sure she was, and Madame Gericault felt called upon to inform her parents. Her parents withdrew her from the school and put her in a school in Italy. I saw her in Rome last year. She is a countess now, fat and jolly, and has eight children."

"Did Madame Gericault sometimes confuse the two Lucettes, Le Fevre and La Blanche?"

"Indeed, she was always confusing our names, although no two could be more different in character. Madame was old even then—and she still lives on. Ma foi! she must be a centenarian."

Three months went by and Celestine Geroux blossomed as the rose in a neat gray costume with a frill of white at the neck. The house in the Rue de la Sorbonne drowsed in peaceful opulence in the heat of late summer. In the garden where the hot sun had drawn forth every last bit of fragrance from the flower and shrub and the damp old earth, two young people sat on the old stone bench.

"So wise, so young," said the young man, playfully pulling the ears of the gray cat who dozed on the bench between them. "You were absolutely right, Lucie, but why be so mournful about it? Don't you want your mother to marry again?"

Lucie took a deep breath. "You know, when you came here that first day you asked for Lucette Le Fevre. Well—mother's name was Lucette La Blanche!"

"Le Fevre or La Blanche, what matter?" comfortably. "Madame Gericault talked of both in her confused and rambling way, until I scarcely knew which was which myself."

"Ah, but your uncle knows," said Lucie.

"Let us forget my uncle who is a man dazed with happiness, and I may tell you that that does not depend upon a name. Would I care if your name was Lucie, Lucette or Hephzibah?" He took her hand and drew it lingeringly across his lips. . . . She leaned toward him.

The gray cat got up with an angry sputter and walked away.

At a tiny restaurant in the Bois where the sun struck down through green branches to fall upon glass and silver, Lucette Emery smiled across the teacups at Monsieur Bertaud.

"Ah, the pearls are lovely," she said, touching a flat box which lay upon the table. "You have the extravagance of the American Hercule."

The man smiled. "One for every year I have waited for you."

"Do you think we ought to tell them?"

"Sooner or later they will find out that it was young Victor who made the mistake in the name. As if there could ever have been anybody for me but Lucette La Blanche!"

She sighed. "Yes, I suppose we must tell them. But never did I do such a thing before, and I hate to confess climbing over that wall!"

16 Hay Road,
Dear Sirs, Keswick, S. Aust.
My father has suffered for a number of years with LUMBAGO and RHEUMATISM in a severe state, being in bed 8 or 9 weeks at a time each year. Some time ago he tried 'ASPRO' Tablets for relief, and they acted wonderfully.
During the last 12 years he has taken very many Tablets, but he enjoys better health and does not get a return of severe pains nor any ill effects from taking your 'ASPRO.'
He continues to take 'ASPRO' Tablets daily and would recommend anyone suffering from LUMBAGO or RHEUMATISM to try 'ASPRO' Tablets as they give such splendid relief.
Yours sincerely,
S.P.M. (Miss) L. WOLSEY.

12 Months' Sciatica Stopped in a Fortnight with 'ASPRO'

27 Marine Pde.,
ST. KILDA,
June 28, 1932.

Dear Sirs,
For nearly 12 months I have been suffering with Sciatica, and could hardly walk with the pains in both legs. I was recommended to take 'ASPRO,' which I did, night and morning, with the result that in a fortnight the pain had practically left me, and I was able to walk about in perfect ease.
Yours faithfully,
(Sgd.) B. L. HARRIS.

NEW BIG HATS RATE HIGH STYLE VALUES

DEFINITELY accepted, decidedly chic and most picturesque are the new big hats! Some call them earthwheels, others call them picture hats, and those whose fashion terms are most casual call them large straws. But whatever you call them, the point is to recognise them as possible aids to a tremendously smart appearance for the rest of the summer. I say possible, because every woman can't and shouldn't try to wear one.

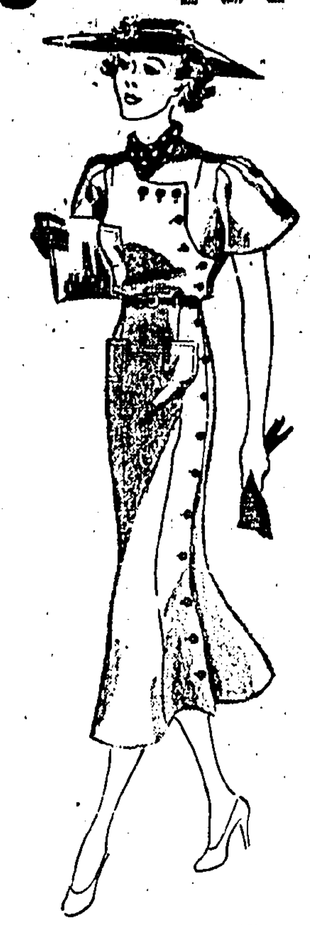
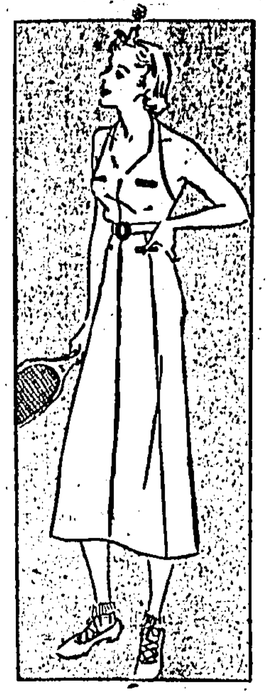
The dramatic sweep to their graceful brims can achieve an amazing bit of flattery for most coiffures and faces. But on short, plump people these hats certainly aren't seen to their best advantage. They are ideal for the tall figure, excellent for the slender face and a wise choice for the person who wants to detract from too wide hips. And the fact that they're straw is very appealing. Straw is much more in keeping with the successful summer sheers and feminine prints than the fabrics and felts that have in the past made their appearance during the summer.



FROM PARIS

BOOT-makers here are featuring fabric shoes in the material of the dress or suit with which they are to be worn. Tweed, flannel or broadcloth shoes for town wear are trimmed on the heel and toe pieces with patent leather. Nearly all the afternoon fabrics are combined with kid. Several old-fashioned cloth-top shoes, covering patent lowers—either laced or buttoned—were noted at Longchamp.



Here are some summer style notes from Deauville. A hooded pastel-blue raincoat lined with navy, pale blue and white striped flannel shirting. The hood was similarly lined. A surah shirtwaist, entirely embroidered with the letters of one's nickname. Chic men were seen wearing Hermes's brightly-coloured hand-knitted cotton gloves matching their scarf, as well as their girl-friend's accessories.

Suzy's latest hats suggest the old-fashioned "Boston-dip pompadour" in outline. They have slightly rounded crowns in coloured felt, and small brims of natural basket straw or contrasting chiffon. They are trimmed in the centre front with large, fat bunches of nasturtiums or water lilies.

BABY IS A CREATURE OF HABITS

BABY is never too young to develop habits, whether they be good or bad, and it is the wise mother who realises that it is easier to prevent the formation of a bad habit than to alter it. The child's good health is definitely linked with healthy habits, so, from infancy, he should be helped to form the best and most useful ones.

A bad habit in the child is often as much a fault of environment as of training. Irritability and inconsistency in the home arouse irritation and resistance on the part of the child against training and management. A bad habit once formed by the child cannot be discarded, and a good one installed, without a lot of understanding and handling in a systematic way.

Baby will in all probability be in the hands of a nurse for a fortnight or a month at the beginning of his life. How important it is, then, that the nurses of the maternity hospital be well versed and trained in true mothercraft methods which deal with training baby along the correct lines right from birth. The infant acquires knowledge in his receptive mind amazingly and quickly during the first year of life, so training in habit formation should begin from the start. No use the mother thinking that she will wait till baby understands what she says before training him.

A bad habit is not cured by the mother "correcting" the child only. Encouragement in forming a new and better habit has to be given by the mother, and never should a bad habit be excused by saying "He will grow out of it when he is older!" Bad habits are only weakening for the child, physically and morally. Often a difficult child is merely the outcome of the mismanagement and irregularity during his early life, causing confusion and lack of confidence around him. The new-born baby possesses the instincts of sucking, swallowing, and crying, but his memory, attention, will, and judgment are yet in abeyance, and have to be gradually established as he becomes independent. He is born without habits; therefore it is for the mother or both parents to train him so that he acquires good habits resulting in good health and happiness.

The habit of obedience is begun early in life by insisting on regularity in eating and sleeping, and a child is never too young to be taught that the entire household is not at his beck and call.

Correct training for a definite aim produces a definite response and automatic obedience, and thus will a habit be ingrained with far-reaching effects on the health and conduct of the individual throughout life.

REMODEL THE CONTOUR OF YOUR FACE

IF your face is over plump do not diet for it, unless you are too plump all over. But one so often sees some quite slim girls with a face which somehow looks too heavy in cheeks and chin in spite of a slim figure. It is clear that only modern methods of massage can alter that. Let us begin on the cheeks and decide how a masseuse who is all the rage in Paris banishes pudginess from the cheeks of her fashionable clients. You do not need to go to Paris, however, to have it done, as the operation is quite simply performed at home.

Sit in front of your mirror and concentrate on those two over-plump little areas below the cheekbones. Now shut your hands tightly, making a clenched fist of each, and press your fists firmly into your face right in the middle of each cheek. Just press as hard as you can while you mentally count four. Then lift your hands away and wait a few seconds until the blood comes circulating back to the cheeks. Then repeat the pressure as before.

Do this for about five minutes, night and morning. Be careful, of course, not to press the face so hard as to hurt it. You will be able to feel just how strong the pressure should be. Very soon this facial treatment will improve the shape of your cheeks, and define the cheekbones better, for well-defined cheekbones can give great character and charm to the face.

This skilful pressing of the flesh will speedily reduce it, but that is not its only advantage. It also makes the skin clearer and fresher, and at the same time prevents those unlovely depressions from forming between the nose and mouth. Even the fine lines round the eyes fill up in time if you gently press your fingertips on them, and, in this way, teach the tiny muscles there to relax.

Under-chin fat is still more unbecoming, as it ruins any profile. No girl should allow fleshiness to develop there, for it is a perfectly simple thing to make slender the line of the jaw and chin. Another few minutes a day you must give to it, but how worth while are a few minutes here and there to gain a charming, youthful facial contour!

Cover your hands with cold cream, and, using each hand in turn, knead the flesh away from under the chin, working it upwards towards the ears. Keep the mouth closed and the chin slightly forward while you do this. The next movement is to knead the flesh with each hand from the point of the chin towards the neck, pressing well up under the chin into that little wad of soft flesh.

Keep this up until that part is simply glowing with warmth. Then slap lightly with the backs of the hands, and finish up by dashing on plenty of cold water. It is obvious that no soft fat is going to resist this kind of treatment for long.

You will notice that one rarely sees fleshiness under the chins of girls with well-developed jaws. It usually goes with a slightly receding chin-line, so any exercise which develops the jaw will help to banish fat and beautify the contour.

Put the head back, and then thrust out the lower lip, forcing it up and out as far as possible. Do this twenty times. It is wonderful exercise for keeping the chin young, removing any heaving underneath it, and making its line smooth and taut.

—CLELIA.

COOL SUGGESTIONS FOR HOT DAYS

NIDS DE MER:—Ingredients: Cheese pastry; the remains of any cold cooked poultry, steamed or smoked fish; a little cream; peas and cress to garnish. Method: Stamp out an equal number of rounds and rings of cheese pastry, and bake in a moderate oven for ten minutes. Prick the top of the rounds to prevent them from rising unevenly. Mount the rings on the rounds and leave to get cold. Next, free the meat or fish from bone and skin, mince finely, sieve, and mix with a little cream. Season well with pepper and salt. Fill your cheese cases with the mixture, garnish with peas and serve cold on cress or lettuce.

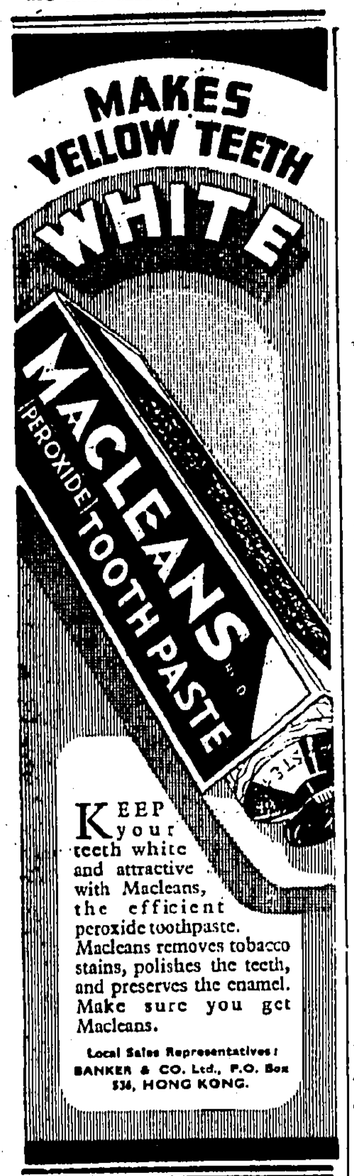
Another supper or luncheon suggestion:

COLD CHEESE SOUFFLES:—Ingredients: Three eggs, three ounces of grated cheese, one pint of milk. Method: Whisk the eggs well. Heat the milk, stirring in the grated cheese, season with salt, pepper, and a trace of cayenne and mixed mustard. When milk boils stir quickly into the whisked eggs. Turn into ramikin dishes and steam slowly in open pan of boiling water till set. Serve cold, garnished with gherkins.

MAYONNAISE SAUCE:—Ingredients: The yolks of two eggs; one teaspoonful of best wine vinegar; one teaspoonful of tarragon vinegar; one teaspoonful of made mustard; one gill of best quality salad oil, or half oil and half cream. Method: Mix together egg yolks, salt and pepper (a saltspoonful of salt, and half that quantity pepper). Add the oil very gradually, a drop at a time at first. Stir well the whole time. The mixture should thicken considerably. Now add the vinegar, a little at a time. This should bring the sauce to the consistency of thick double cream. Add the mustard. Lemon could be substituted for vinegar if desired.

DREAMS COME TRUE

When sitting in the movies and watching your favourite film star floating across the screen how often did you think: "Now that is a smart dress! How lovely I would look in it!" . . . and dismissed the thought with a sigh . . . "Only a dream!" . . . Do you know that there is a place in Hong Kong where such dreams come true? A place where you can have copies of the film star's dresses before the pictures in which they are worn are shown here? "VOGUE" is the place, or I should say places, as they have two shops: in the Gloucester Building and in Kowloon. Think of it! Three shipments a month straight from the smartest dressmakers of Hollywood and their very latest creations. As soon as a new design is made for one of the great film stars, a copy is immediately dispatched to "VOGUE". You can't go wrong there! And here is the other surprise: "VOGUE" is the lowest-priced dress-shop in town! I am sure you will go there to see that lime-green chiffon frock Ginger Rogers wore recently. Ask them to show you their American shoes; I especially recommend you those smart football sandals.



KEEP your teeth white and attractive with Macleans, the efficient peroxide toothpaste. Macleans removes tobacco stains, polishes the teeth, and preserves the enamel. Make sure you get Macleans.

RECREIO ARE GIVEN SCARE AT VALLEY

C. G. SILVA SUSTAINS ANOTHER DEFEAT

ADAM HOLLAND'S BIG WIN

THERE were no major surprises in yesterday's Lawn Bowls League programme, although Club de Recreio were fully extended by Civil Service, H. A. Alves' rink winning by 16 shots to give the visitors the points by a 3-shot margin!

Quite the closest encounter of the afternoon was witnessed at Taikoo where Kowloon Dock lost their "Derby" encounter by one shot as the result of J. C. Chalmers's success over J. Ramsay. J. McKelvie led R. C. Wallace 20-19 at the 20th end and was forced to draw, while N. Drummond, who led 20-16 at the 19th end, was forced to share the spoils with F. Cullen!

C. G. Silva suffered yet another reverse, J. Hollidge winning 16-15 after leading 16-9 at the 16th end. L. A. Gutierrez came up from behind to draw with R. R. Davies and U. M. Omar, scoring on seven of the last eight heads, won 18-17 from A. Hyde-Lay.

Adam Holland had the biggest win — 28 shots over A. R. Minu, who registered on only four ends. Sixes were recorded by R. F. Luz, who won by 15 shots, H. Alves, who was up 16 shots, and A. Stevenson, who had a 13-shot win.

Austin Qualifies To Meet Allison In Quarter-Finals At Wimbledon--No Upsets

London, Yesterday.

Hundreds of hardy people braving dismal conditions at Wimbledon yesterday, saw H. W. "Bunny" Austin, the British Davis Cup player, slither his way into the last eight of the Men's Singles Championship by beating the Frenchman Martin Legeay 6-4, 6-1, 6-2 in the Fourth Round.

Heavy rain, following an overnight downpour, delayed the start, the courts being covered with huge tarpaulins which, however, failed to protect them, water finding a way through. The courts, as a result, were very greasy, and Austin was twice spreadeagled in the first set, while Legeay skated perilously near to the corners while chasing well-placed drives.

Fred Perry, holder in 1934 and 1935, and Dorothy Round, holder in 1934, are Britain's main hopes in the singles events at Wimbledon.

BRITISH OPEN GOLF

COX AND ADAMS IN LEAD

COMPETITION MOST OPEN IN RECENT YEARS

London, Yesterday.

The British Open Golf title is still in one of the most open stages in many years, 18 players having scores of between 144 and 148.

The Ryder Cup player Wiffy Cox, and the newly crowned Scottish champion James Adams lead with 144 each, with Henry Cotton, Arthur Padgham, Francis Francis, Richard Burton and Dellemagne (France) following closely with scores of 145.

Next in order are Percy Alliss, Bert Gadd, Norman Sutton and Tom Collings, whose scores are 146, the last two being from the North.

McLEAN'S LAPSE

There were no notable failures excepting that Jack McLean took an eight at the sixth hole to make his score 150, while Hector Thompson, the new British Amateur champion, took 152.

Richard Burton and Rees did the best rounds yesterday with scores of 71 each, the former going out in brilliant style for a card of 33.

The final, over 36 holes, will be played to-day.

There was a slight north-west wind blowing when the Championship was resumed yesterday, the players going out in the reverse order to that of the previous day. The par and scratch scores for the lengthened course are 72 and 76 respectively.

Players returning scores of 156 and under qualify for the final 36 holes, the latest scores being:—

NEXT WEEK'S TENNIS

Bank Holiday Upsets Programme

VITAL "A" DIVISION MATCH

Owing to the Bank Holiday next Wednesday there will be no "B" Division Lawn Tennis League fixtures on that day.

To-morrow the C.R.C. should easily overcome Recreio, who have drawn their only match this season, in the Mixed Doubles League, while the K.C.C. "A" should be able to enjoy a quiet knock up against their "B" team in the only other encounter on the programme.

On Tuesday, however, the match between the K.C.C. and I.R.C. will be a vital one in the "A" Division. The winners, unless Recreio improve, would appear to be the most serious rivals to the C.R.C. for the title the Causeway Bay Club have won for the last four years.

The following is this coming week's programme:

MIXED DOUBLES
(To-morrow)

Recreio v C.R.C.
K.C.C. (1) v K.C.C. (2)

Miss Kay Stammers (Gt. Britain) entered the fourth round of the Women's Singles when she beat Mme. Jean Meulmeester (Belgium) by 6—4, 6—0, while Mlle. Nelly Adamson (Belgium) and Miss Mary Hardwicke (Gt. Britain) also entered the last 16.

In the First Round of the Women's Doubles, the strong American pair Miss Carolin Babcock and Mrs. Van Ryn were surprisingly eliminated by Mrs. Allister (S. Africa) and Miss Betty Nuthall (Gt. Britain), the scores being 6—4, 3—6, 6—3.

ALLISON EXTENDED

The programme was entirely disorganised by the rain, only four courts being fit for use. In the fourth round of the Men's Singles, Willmer Allison beat C. M. Jones (Britain) 10—8, 6—4, 1—6, 7—5, and will now meet H. W. ("Bunny") Austin in the quarter-finals.

G. von Cramm, the German champion and second favourite for the title, beat Henrique Maier (Spain) 10—8, 6—2, 2—6, 6—2, while Donald Budge beat Caska (Czechoslovakia) 6—3, 6—0, 6—4.

Jack Crawford and Adrian Quist (Australia) and Fred Perry and Miss Dorothy Round, holders of the Men's Doubles and Mixed Doubles titles respectively, secured easy victories, and in the Third Round of the Women's Singles Miss Freda James beat Miss Joan Saunders (Britain) 3—6, 6—4, 6—3, and Mlle. Jedrezejowska (Poland) beat Mrs. King (Britain) 6—3, 6—2.

BREAK IN WEATHER

Wimbledon, Earlier: — The fine weather of the early part of the week has broken and conditions were dismal at Wimbledon yesterday owing to the heavy rain experienced overnight and early this morning.

The courts were soaked and the start had to be delayed.

The chief match was that in which "Bunny" Austin reached the last eight by beating Martin Legeay, of France, by 6—4, 6—1, 6—2.

MEN'S DOUBLES

In the Second Round of the Men's Doubles, Jack Crawford and Adrian Quist (Australia), the holders, beat Kho Sin-kie and Gordon Lum 6—1, 6—2, 6—4. The Chinese pair were outclassed, and though Lum approached brilliance at times with his crafty net-work, Kho was very erratic and only won one service.

Cunningham (America) and Itoh (Japan) beat Ian Collins (Britain) and Hal Surface (America) in their Second Round clash by 4—6, 6—2, 4—6, 6—3, 6—4.

FATE OF ETHIOPIAN CROWN

GOES TO BERLIN, THEN TO ENGLAND

Restored To Abyssinia 61 Years Later

IN the course of history, crowns have often experienced a strange fate; but none could be stranger than that of the crown of the Emperor Theodore of Abyssinia.

About seventy years ago, in 1864, at the time when the Emperor Theodor had so many differences with foreign countries, particularly with England, he allowed himself to overstep the bounds of a wise internal policy and imprisoned all foreigners. Two years later, in order to settle matters amicably, the British Government sent an envoy to Abyssinia, but he, too, shared the same fate.

This was too much for Britain, and in 1868 the British Government, in order to obtain satisfaction, sent an expeditionary force to Abyssinia under the leadership of General Napier, who had earned his laurels in India. This party was joined by several German officers representing the then King William of Prussia, and by the well-known African explorer, Gerhardt Rohlf, a German, who also acted as War Correspondent.

Landing At Massawa

The English, like the Italians of to-day, landed at Massawa and moved towards the fortress of Magdala, which, according to the Abyssinians, was impregnable and only to be approached from one side. The main struggles took place between Good Friday and Easter Monday. On Good Friday the Abyssinians were defeated at the foot of their fortress, near Aroge, and Rohlf reports as follows:—

Easter Monday, April 13th.

"A fierce storm raged throughout the action. Torrential rain, thunder and lightning mingled with the roar of the cannons and rockets. The Indian and European troops of the English were well on the march. Starting at 5 a.m., without food, some had not even a drop of water, they arrived at the firing line at 4 o'clock in the afternoon very much fatigued.

"The Naval Brigade did wonders with their rockets, and if other troops had been at hand we should have stormed the fortress that very same evening.

"To-day, Easter Monday, negotiations are still in progress with the Emperor regarding the prisoners. Those of English origin are already in the camp, and we hope to get all the others by evening, unconditionally. In addition, Theodor's subjection will be demanded, he must surrender and be our captive, failing which, Magdala will be stormed.

"Theodor's army numbers 5,000 men, with 20,000 wives. The English have 24 wounded, amongst them one captain. There are no dead."

The events which Rohlf anticipated according to his notes, written probably early on Easter Monday morning, did not materialise. The storming of the fortress of Magdala was carried out on that self-same Easter Monday.

Next Day

On the Tuesday we find the following gripping report:—

"Yesterday at 9 o'clock the storm column started operations, and within one hour and a quarter, had climbed down the incline between Fala and Selasse, where 11 enemy chiefs and 1,500 men immediately laid down their arms.

"From here a narrow path led upwards to the rocky fortress at the foot of which a company of cavalrymen were on guard. Of these, only four men charged forward, of which one is reported to have been the Emperor himself, fired their rifles, and then retreated.

"It was then that the vanguard of the 45th Regiment suddenly came upon Theodor's Artillery Park, comprising some 25 cannons, which presumably were intended for the top of the Magdala. These were immediately seized upon by the English, who turned them upon the enemy with such good results that only a few weak detachments were left to hurry back to the fort.

Fortress Bombarded

"Towards two o'clock the British mountain artillery arrived with their Armstrong guns and for two hours continued to bombard the fortress. Then an ascent was made to the narrow gateway which had not been battered down yet, and which, on account of lack of petards, was not so easy to blow up.

"One detachment of the storm column, however, found a side entrance above the rocks. They killed the few defenders and opened the main entrance from inside. The soldiers pressed forward through a second gateway, without resistance, finding themselves before the corpse of Theodor who, it is alleged, requested his bearer-of-arms to shoot him. Only a few more shots and the fortress with some of its buildings in flames, with all the belongings of the Usurper, and his women, fell into the hands of the English who, even at he end of this drama, had only sustained very slight losses."

Of the head of the dead Emperor a sketch was immediately made by one of the Englishmen, which, according to The Times, proved to be a very good likeness. In any case it shows that the Emperor Theodor was a peculiar and in his own way an important personality.

The Royal Crown

Whilst plundering the well-equipped fortress an extraordinary enamel and gilt filigree-work metal head-covering fell into the hands of one of the English soldiers.

He took it with him as a souvenir, perhaps for want of something better, and without quite knowing what to do with it. Gerhardt Rohlf immediately noticed the booty and, as a savant of matters African, recognised in it an object of ethnographic interest which might be of value to the Berlin Museum, then in its flourishing stages.

He exchanged the treasure for "two bottles of rum" and took it to Berlin, regarding it more as a curiosity or as a sort of ecclesiastical processional crown, than anything else. It was then that experts recognised it as the Crown of Abyssinia, which the Emperor Theodor had lost, together with his life, on that Easter morning in 1868.

Rohlf presented the costly acquisition to the King of Prussia, who, in turn, made a present of it to Queen Victoria of England. In 1869 she made it over to the Victoria and Albert Museum. There it was on public view until one day in 1925, when, after an announcement by the museum authorities, it was restored to the Emperor of Abyssinia.

CATASTROPHE!

MR. X SURVIVES THE STORM

JOINED BY AMERICANS FROM INTERIOR

(By Phyllis Juby)

THE last ship has departed; in its cabins repose the small group who remained to attend to the last work of evacuation, recovering from the effects of the party they threw in the Hong Kong Hotel the night before. As, gradually, they regain consciousness and are able to take stock of the last night's happenings, they discover that one of their party is missing. Hong Kong is already 300 miles away. The Captain is "very sorry," but to his deep regret he has to refuse the request to return to Hong Kong.

Who was the man? How was he left behind? And what will his fate be?

Almost at the same time as the party on board became sober enough to realise that one of their number was missing, in a room of the abandoned Hotel, Mr. X sat up on a rather disordered bed and stared about him vacantly. Slowly he regained consciousness and tried to settle in his mind where he was and what actually had happened. The memory of last night's party rose in his confused mind. He remembers feeling rather sick and wandering away to one of the rooms to lie down; but after that everything is perfectly blank. And now where are the others? Why is everything so quiet?

He got off the bed with some effort and felt his way down the stairs. He walked through the empty lounge, passing the deserted reception desk, and made his way up the steps to Mac's Cafeteria. Not a sign of life anywhere. Only stumps of candles floating in the remains of last night's drinks, broken bottles and dirty dishes.

He staggered out into the street, but only the desolation of an abandoned town greeted him "Better take a look at the Praya," he murmured. But there, not a person, not a ship, only some debris floating on the surface of the water. His eyes scanned the harbour. For a moment he hoped that the ship had changed its position. But no, he had to convince himself that it was definitely gone. For a while he was overcome by the realisation that he was left alone in the evacuated town. But the shock quickly cleared away the last mist in his brain and he began to examine the possibilities of escape.

S.O.S. to Shipping

HE remembered that in the last few days quite a lot of small craft had still been passing through the harbour. Was it not possible that some latecomers would still be passing by? After all, there were another few weeks to the predicted date of the catastrophe. Some might even stop for fresh water. These thoughts made him more cheerful and he decided to get busy at once.

The first thing to do was to make sure that none of the ships would pass without stopping. He could not spend all his time keeping watch on the Praya — already he was beginning to feel hungry — and he realised that the traditional shirt-flag of the shipwrecked would not be of much use. He must think of something far more conspicuous.

Suddenly his eye caught the big advertisement painted on the side of the Star Ferry landing. That gave him an idea. He crossed over to the Ferry and after some searching found a pot of paint and a couple of old brushes. He did not waste any time and an hour later the end of the Star Ferry was decorated with a huge red skull and crossbones (that, he decided, was most likely to attract attention), and in big letters STOP! MAN LEFT IN TOWN. S.O.S. Then he walked down to the V.R.C. and there repeated his design. And, at both places, he pinned a note explaining that he could be found at the Hong Kong Hotel.

It occurred to him that a ship might pass nearer to the Kowloon side so he would have to put up some signs there too. But it was already getting dark and his hunger was becoming more acute, so he decided to leave that for the next morning. He returned to the Hotel and, after opening some tins of canned food left behind, he went to sleep.

Walla-Walla Dance

NEXT morning he managed his breakfast in the same way as his supper of the previous evening. The first realisation of his actual situation came when he wanted to take his morning bath. No water came from the taps. He decided that a bath was not the most urgent business — nor was a shave. As yet he had plenty of bottled mineral water to drink. He walked down to the Praya again to discover in what manner he could get across to Kowloon.

Surveying the waterfront, he noticed some Walla-Wallas neatly tied up at Blake Pier. He was quite confident that if there was any petrol in the tanks, he would have no difficulty in steering a boat across to the other side; he had often noticed how a motor-boat was started. He was lucky; one of the tanks was nearly full. He untied the boat, and, after fidgeting a little with the gadgets, managed to start the engine. The boat began to move and, getting hold of the wheel he steered steadily towards the Kowloon Ferry. He had never before driven a motor-boat and now he had an exhilarating feeling as she shot through the water.

But his spirits were soon dampened; as he neared the opposite side and tried to slow down to be able to land he found he did not know enough about the gadgets. He had to keep on going round in circles while he moved levers this way and that, but there was not the expected response.

Ship That Passed

ON occasions there came such a roar from the engine that he decided to give up his attempts for fear of blowing up the whole boat. Then, as he was careering round in this way, he saw a small steamship approaching at great speed. "Thank God," he thought, "this is quicker than I could have expected."

The steamship was passing nearer to the Hong Kong side and rapidly nearing Blake Pier. He steered desperately towards her, but soon he saw that she was proceeding with much greater speed than his own boat. He had to signal. He waved one hand, keeping the other on the wheel. After a while some of the crew gathered at the railing and gazed in his direction. He pulled out his handkerchief to make the waving more conspicuous.

Some of the men on board waved back cheerfully. More and more desperate, he released the wheel and waved both hands like a windmill. The uncontrolled boat described some fancy curves and the men on board appeared amused by the exhibition, but the boat kept up speed and soon was at such a distance that he had to give up all hope. Very low in spirits, he returned to his original task, to accomplish the landing at Kowloon. At last he managed to pass near enough to shore to risk a sudden jump and abandon the Walla Walla, thus postponing the matter of his return. At Kowloon he found paint and brushes at the fire station and soon some convenient points were decorated with the gruesome skull and bones and their appeal beneath.

Being alone, hunger seems to be exacting company, and he tried the Peninsula with no mean success. He decided to stay for the night. In Mr. Dimond's room he found everything in perfect order and subsequently had a luxurious sleep.

Exciting Vigil

THE following days passed in an exciting watch for other boats. None came, but, still hopeful, he constructed some cut-out letters spelling S. O. S. and after dark kept a fire burning behind them until he became too sleepy and returned to the Peninsula.

Toward the end of the first week he had to face the unpleasant fact that his stock of mineral waters was gone. Since the experience with the Walla-Walla he hated navigation, but there was still plenty of mineral waters at the Hong Kong Hotel, so at length he found a boat and paddled across the harbour. He was well into the second week now, and as there was no sign of any vessel, he gave up all hope of escape. Apparently the evacuation was completed and all the ships still in the neighbouring seas were avoiding the danger zone.

The life he was forced to live began to get on his nerves. The aspect of the town became more and more ghostly. The streets were covered with dust; the buildings, void of life, stood out in all their ugliness; the heat was unbearable, and in the deadly stillness of the town each occasional sound was amplified. He was always expectant, tense, afraid; when the wind swept a leaf on the pavement, he felt that somebody was following him. There was no moon, the town lay in complete darkness.

He kept in his room a whole store of electric torches he had found in the China Emporium. When he returned at night from the Praya rats gambolled about his ankles; they even invaded the hotel and got into his room.

Two Arrivals

THE next two weeks he spent in various moods. There were times when he accepted the hopelessness of the situation. But generally he was feverishly trying to plan some means of escape. There were plenty of cars over in Kowloon. Was it too late to reach safety in Central China? Yes, it was. He would never manage to cover the distance; beyond the New Territories there were no roads, and how would he manage to take a sufficient store of petrol?

He made a thousand plans, but each in turn had to be discarded.

And now it was only two days before the catastrophe. Excited and agitated, he walked down towards the Praya. How should he spend his time now? He thought of suicide, pushed away the idea, then thought of it again. And then, what joy! a little boat was coming across the harbour, slowly. He ran forward, shouted, waved his arms, and gazed, fearing all the while that it might be only a trick of his imagination. But no, he could make out the figures of two men, bearded and as unkempt as he. And they were just as excited to see him. The day went in an exchange of stories: the two new arrivals were young Americans who had been prospecting in the interior of China. They missed the last opportunity to be taken down to Hong Kong and had been trying to make their way down alone through the deserted country. After many adventures they reached Kowloon and, finding no sign of life, they had decided to cross over and explore the Island. They had lost trace of time and were surprised to find how near they were to the predicted date of the catastrophe.

They were distressed to hear that the catastrophe was so near and there could be no hope of escape. But the younger of the Americans soon got over his disillusionment, "Aw nuts," he said; "twenty million of those sky-gazing wiseguys may be wrong! —some of them may have made a miscalculation. This is not the first end-of-the-world baloney." The others cheered up too—perhaps there was some hope?

27-Hour Storm

MR. X. then led the newcomers to the Hotel, graciously playing the host. The next two days, with his two new companions, passed more pleasantly for him. They made walks along the waterfront, played bridge by candle light, and each tried to keep up a cheerful front—though deep down they awaited the fateful day with fear and trembling.

The night before the day they were awakened by a terrific storm which continued for 27 hours. Toward two o'clock in the afternoon the sky became bright red and glaring. Soon earth-tremors were felt, recurring every twenty minutes or so. Pictures, pieces of furniture were rocking and the men had the sensation of being on board ship. Outside could be heard the crash of collapsing buildings. Fortunately the hotel survived. The evening came, but no darkness; the intense light persisted throughout the next few days, and in the sky they could observe a large new star, many times the size of the moon. But the planet diminished each night and the light became fainter. The earth tremors recurred occasionally, but always at greater intervals. Four extraordinary days were experienced and then all was normal again.

Arrival of Japanese

THE three men gradually recovered from the terror of the past days and realised that the unbelievable had happened — they had escaped! Their rejoicing knew no bounds.

The younger American immediately saw new possibilities. They would be famous! The only men remaining in the danger zone. They would be interviewed, their pictures would be in all the papers of the world. Then to write about their experiences—a movie contract!

Their fortune was made!

The following week they were drunk with happiness. But they did not neglect the bottles still plentiful in the Hotel. One late afternoon, when still recovering from the previous night's rejoicing, they heard strange sounds from the street. They leaped out of bed. The young American was first to reach the window. "Holy Mackerel!" he exclaimed, "I'll be—if these are not Japanese!" They were. The street below was alive with them. Marines were marching up Pedder Street in great numbers from the Praya. The three staring men were soon seen from below. In a few minutes a Japanese officer stood in their room and half a dozen soldiers with fixed bayonets.

Cross-Examination

THE officer politely asked them to dress and accompany him downstairs. He led them to a Colonel who spoke fair English, and there followed a long interrogation. The Colonel wished to know why they had remained in Hong Kong? What nationality, please? Is the English gentleman a Government official? And if so, is he now actually representing the British Government?

When the questioning was over, there followed a long conference in Japanese among the officers, of which our men could understand nothing. Finally they were curtly informed that as the British Government had abandoned the Colony the Imperial Japanese Government was taking possession. Would they please wait where they were until the Colonel could consult the "Authority" as to what should happen to them.

They were left in the Hotel lounge under the watchful eyes of soldiers. Night came, but from the streets could be heard sounds of great activity. Through the glass doors passing artillery could be seen. Nobody seemed to pay any more attention to the men in the lounge. They got tired and hungry. When they complained, another group of officers held another conference and finally informed them that the "Authority" was too busy to do anything about them, but they might return to their rooms.

They spent their next few days in bewilderment. They were not allowed on the street, but from their window they could observe that apparently more and more ships were arriving bringing all sorts of war materials and other supplies. In a few days lights, water supply etc., were functioning again. Soon many civilians appeared among the soldiers crowding the street.

Expelled

FOR 10 days the men were completely ignored, and then the Colonel appeared again and informed them of the decision of the "Authority." As, for the time being, no foreigners were to be allowed in the new Japanese colony, they were to be conveyed to Japan and from there they would be allowed to proceed to America or, via Siberia, to Europe.

They were asked to be ready in an hour's time. An hour later they were led on board of a Japanese freighter and soon were steaming out of the harbour. As the ship gathered speed they still had time to observe in Statue Square what looked like an official ceremony. The Japanese flag was being hoisted, soldiers were presenting arms, officers were saluting, a band was playing . . . In short, the Japanese Army was officially taking possession of the Island of Hong Kong.

MOUTH ACIDS Attack in the DANGER ZONE

MERCILESS enemies of teeth and gums lurk in every mouth. They are the Germ Acids which form from decaying food particles hidden in the space between teeth, imperfections in the enamel and where teeth meet gums, an area known as the Danger Zone. These Germ Acids cause decay and gum irritations.

Ordinary dentifrices are powerless against Germ Acids, but Squibb Dental Cream neutralizes them for it is antacid. It has a scientific action and preserves teeth as it cleans them.

Squibb Dental Cream is safe in the mouth of the youngest child. It contains no grit, no astringents, no bleaches.

Check this menace at its source. Fight decay scientifically. Put Squibb Dental Cream on guard in the Danger Zone.

ONE will certainly miss the weekly article by G. K. Chesterton on the first inside page of the Illustrated London News, where it had been a regular feature for 30 years. Not that one always read it. Very few people can go on producing several thousand words every week—as a mere parergon to much other versatile work such as comic short stories, detective yarns and an occasional book—and retain freshness of thought and expression unfurnished. With Chesterton it was not so much the thought as the expression that got rather tired. I can remember reading what must have been either his first contribution or very near it. The trick of epigram and inversion was something new and very intriguing, especially as the letterpress of the illustrated papers had no reputation at that time—and very rarely since—for interest on its own account.

REGULAR CONTRIBUTIONS

THE weekly lucubrations of "G.K.C." were rather a survival from the old style of journalism, in which a writer held something of the permanent tenure of a parson in the Established Church. Perhaps for length of tenure of his journalistic pulpit George R. Sims established an even longer record—certainly over 30 years. He wrote a full page of the Referee, under the heading "Mustard and Cress." But he was far more miscellaneous and was not above "lifting" other men's good things by way, nominally, of quotation. And a good deal of his gossip was rather pointless. At any rate the essence of the tradition was that the permanent contributor was given an entirely free hand, and no editor or proprietor thought of interfering by dictating any particular line of comment.

* * *

HENRY DUNCKLEY

PERHAPS the most famous of such serial contributions was the weekly letter signed "Verax" in a newspaper now extinct, the Manchester Examiner, which was written by Henry Dunckley for over 20 years. He had gifts of irony and sarcasm rarely shown by any writer so freshly over a long period. I imagine that a collection of the best of his contributions would read quite freshly even to-day. One I remember very distinctly, even to verbal quotation, though it must be nearly 50 years ago that I read it. The then Duke of Marlborough went bankrupt, and a bill of sale was issued. Included amongst the items was the diamond-studded sword of honour presented to the Great Duke after his victory at Blenheim. But on examination it was found that the diamonds had already been extracted and replaced with paste! Of course, it was a heaven-sent opportunity for a satirist. Dunckley did not like the Churchill family, and when the Duke was in the Divorce Court Lord Randolph was due for a speech at a local demonstration; he remarked that "it was said of the great John Churchill that he betrayed every cause and every woman entrusted to his protection. Nowadays the family is degenerate. It takes one member to betray the causes, while another betrays the women."

* * *

GEORGE AUGUSTUS SALA

A VERY different writer was George Augustus Sala, whose effusions were for long a feature of the Daily Telegraph. He used to write in a small room at the top of the Telegraph building, fortified by regular supplies of beer in large flagons from a Fleet Street public-house. Some of his things were collected in such books as "Twice Round the Clock." All went well until one day when the machines were waiting he was discovered fast asleep with a blank sheet of paper in front of him. The furious editor-proprietor, Levi Lawson, insisted that in future he must see him duly seated in his room and then lock him in till the copy was delivered. To his great surprise there was no protest. His suspicions were aroused, and he kept an eye on the corridor. By-and-by he saw a small boy strolling along with a jug of beer and a churchwarden pipe with a stem about two feet long. The end was inserted through the keyhole and the bowl placed in the jug, which was very soon empty! Matthew Arnold referred sarcastically to the "roaring of the young lions of the Daily Telegraph," but there has never since been a writer that had such a wide knowledge of the daily life of the people of London.

In his love of beer alone Chesterton resembled him, but his style of writing was as different as his temperament. Chesterton was essentially a serious-minded man, though he had no time for the cant of respectability and he hated, as Julius Caesar did, the man who could not laugh heartily. We shall miss his weekly logical somersaults, which so often made us wonder whether the things we took for granted were really sense or nonsense.

THE JOYOUS LIFE OF CHRIST

"MAN OF SORROWS" IS MISLEADING TERM

JESUS NEVER DESCRIBED HIMSELF AS SUCH

(By the Rev. J. N. LEWIS BRYAN)

ONE of the greatest mistakes which Christianity has made, down the long years of its history, has been the emphasis it has place dupon Our Lord as being the "Man of Sorrows."

The title was taken from Isaiah's well-known description of the "Suffering Servant of God" in that famous 53rd chapter. In some ways, of course, He was a "Man of Sorrows." He could scarcely have looked out on human life as it is and seen the evil which men do to each other, their wrongs and oppressions, and remained unmoved by the sadness of it all. Then again, the most sympathetic heart that ever beat never failed, as we know, to be touched by the sight of human sorrow and suffering and wretchedness.

His picture of Lazarus the beggar, laid at the rich man's gate, comes almost certainly from His recollection of a sight which He had seen, and which must have made Him sad. Human sin is something which brings sorrow to the heart of any good man; how much more, therefore, to the heart of Him who saw, as no other did, the full measure of men's sin and its tragic consequences.

We know that He wept over the sin of Jerusalem, the tragedy of her blindness and of her impending desolation: and indeed the hardness of men's hearts, their rejection of Him who came to save them, all the black ingratitude and hatred which culminated in good Friday, was enough to make a "Man of Sorrows" of anyone.

Man Of Joy

ALL the same that is about the last title which He would ever have thought of applying to Himself. There is a sense in which Isaiah's words appropriately describe Him, but that is not the same thing as saying that He ever thought of Himself as a "Man of Sorrows." Such a way of regarding Himself would have been something entirely foreign to His whole nature and character. It has too much about it which carries the suggestion of weakness and of the desire for sympathy, and Christ was too courageous, too much a man, to accept for Himself a title which had in it even the faintest implication of such things.

There is a passage in Streeter's "Reality" which deals with this; "Is it nothing to you, all ye that pass by? Behold and see if there be any sorrow like unto my sorrow." In their original context these wonderful words are the wail of Jerusalem desolated by the Babylonian conqueror. When, however, they are written beneath a crucifix, as if spoken by Christ himself, they are apt to be misleading. The best men do not make pitiful appeals of this kind for themselves. They are inclined to be silent about, or to underestimate, their personal sufferings: Christ drank to the dregs the cup of disappointment and despair, but He did not call pathetic attention to the fact. He wore, but did advertise, a crown of thorns.

IT is therefore only with careful discrimination that we must speak of Our Lord as the "Man of Sorrows," for it can be, and often is, misleading. In Himself, as He stands before us in the Gospels, He was the exact opposite. He compared Himself and His disciples to a bridal party on a honeymoon, and gave that as His reason for not fasting as much as the Pharisees thought He ought to. His favourite saying was "Be of good cheer." His enemies found fault with Him precisely because He was far too cheerful for a religious teacher, just in the same way as certain people to-day are inclined to be suspicious of genuine religion, unless it wears the garments of mourning, and carries a countenance as long as a fiddle.

Christ's contemporaries condemned Him because He seemed to compare so unfavourably with the gloomy and dour character of John the Baptist. They objected to His going to so many supper-parties, especially with publicans and sinners, who were, perhaps, inclined to be somewhat jolly!

We must remember that He was the author of the Beatitudes, and the real meaning of "blessed" is "happy." In the Beatitudes He has given us a list of happy people He said that the Kingdom of Heaven was such a happy thing that it made you feel like a man who, having found hidden treasure in a field, in his joy goes and sells his last stick of furniture to buy it.

Fosdick described Him as "he most radiant Person to be found in His day in Palestine." He spoke of His own life, even with its persecutions, as a blessed or happy life. He was anything but blind to the sin and pain and sorrow of the world, but He walked about it with an incurable optimism, telling people that the love of God, His beauty and companionship, were much bigger things than anything that they could see; that all was really well behind the scenes, and that the victory of right over might was perfectly sure.

Happy To The End

EVEN at the Last Supper, with the Cross awaiting Him. He talked about His "joy," and how He was passing it on to them. He was occupied in the happiest work that there is in the world—finding lost men and bringing them back to God. This, He said, made you as happy as a shepherd who had found a lost sheep and it set the angels singing. The thing that made the elder brother aware that there was something up at home was "the sound of music and dancing when he drew nigh to the house."

The whole of His teaching was optimistic; the very message which He preached He called the "Good News." He must have had a tremendous sense of humour, for it constantly peeped out in His talks. His pointed and witty sallies must have made the crowds laugh again and again. He forbade His disciples, even when they were fasting, to "be of a sad countenance;" and so He has left the world what should be the merriest religion that there is.

He described God, Himself, as saying, "It was meet that we should make merry and be glad," and anyone who understands Christ and His mind and teaching should go about the place with a merry heart. The worst friends which Christianity has are those who have robbed it of its joy and cheer.

SUMMER IS HERE-THE SWIMMING SEASON IS ON!

GARGOYLE Mobiloil

Blazing sunshine and dashes to the beach on every possible occasion are the order of the day. Without intending to be pessimistic, however, we want to remind motorists that summer driving puts new strain on motorcar engines—a strain that will, if it is not checked, soon result in heavy repair bills. The remedy?—nothing difficult—no 'fag.' Simply fill up the crankcase with the correct grade of Mobiloil and let Socony Gasoline reign in the gas tank. You have then reduced your motoring worries to the absolute minimum.

Sir Frederick's Summary

EXCEPT in Tokyo there has been no difference of opinion as to the value of the summary of financial affairs in the Far East which Sir Frederick Leith-Ross, after nine months' investigation during which he has declined all invitations to talk in public, confided to a composite party of journalists on taking leave. Twenty years ago, before the breakdown of the exchange system under which international trade and finance had flourished, there would have been no such unanimity. No such thing as a "managed currency" would have received a word of encouragement. Currencies were either controlled by a ratio of reserve held on gold or silver, or they were "unmanaged." There was no recorded instance of any Government that had the power to make money by a mere order to the printer having the strength of purpose to resist the temptation to use the power as an escape from any temporary difficulty, or even to satisfy personal cupidity. To take what are now called the "major currencies"—the "minor currencies" show examples too flagrant to need reference—the franc took a long time to recover from the flood as assignats issued by the Revolutionary Government; the American "Greenbacks" became almost useless for buying anything and many fortunes were made by astute collectors who believed rigidly that some day there would be financial change of heart; the pound sterling was tampered with in all sorts of ways until control was restored by the grant of a charter to the Bank of England. There can be no doubt of the dangers of a management system and it is a revelation of present chaos that even in China there was no alternative. It is also all the more encouraging to find that Sir Frederick considers that up to the present the experiment has been thoroughly justified.

We must resign ourselves to the fact that there is no early prospect of any change. The breakdown having been caused by the purchase of silver by the Washington Treasury in such quantities as to double its market price naturally turns one's eyes towards that big stock of silver lying useless in the vaults. What is going to be done with it? There is no need for it as a reserve so long as there is a superfluity of gold under the care of the same turnkeys.

Events have proved that the best indication of the motives and ideology of the sections of politicians who, to the surprise of most of the world, were strong enough to impose their will on the White House, is the public speeches of Senator Key Pittman. The other day he gave an interview to the press, in which he said that although the Treasury had now stopped buying silver he was "quite satisfied with the position." With its large stock of bullion in hand the American Treasury would retain its control of the silver market, "whatever other countries might do." That is quite patently true, but the implications are very serious. They are, firstly, that just as the silver standard was broken up before by buying, so might it be broken again by selling. Nobody can deny that a selling campaign of equal dimensions would have at least equally disastrous results. The further implication is that the Senator's friends would regard such an operation as quite justifiable for political reasons or for the purpose of breaking down a prosperous trade that was in the hands of rival traders. That there could not be any profit to the National Treasury in such a deal is obvious, for the first movement towards selling would depress the price to a level at which a big loss would be shown in comparison with the purchase price.

Still further back in the implications of the Senator's mentality is the old "mercantile theory" fallacy, that any prosperity in a foreign country is a menace and an offence. The Senatorial attitude has already destroyed most of the American general export trade by ignoring the natural law that all commerce is an exchange of goods. He who will not buy cannot in the long run continue to sell. This would have been clear to everyone had not the devaluation of the dollar partially concealed it. The favourable dollar exchange which still subsists is almost all due to the one enormous item of oil. So long as the world cannot get along without vast quantities of American oil the present necessity of settling balances in gold and silver will continue to make those metals useless for their old function. The Prime Minister of Argentina recently said: "We can only afford to buy from those who buy from us." Australia's new tariff is avowedly designed to shut out American goods. China can only hope to keep her trade balance right if the same principle is kept in mind. With a balanced budget and a balance of trade there will be no strain on the managed currency, and it will be independent of the manipulations of the metal markets.

Hong Kong Personalities

MR. H. S. LO

This is the ninety-ninth of the exclusive series of sketches of leading Colony residents by Mr. A. S. Konya, the talented Hungarian artist.

OUR Personality this week is Mr. Hin-shing Lo, M.A., Barrister-at-law.

Mr. Lo was born in Hong Kong on January 15, 1890 and educated first at Queen's College, where he became Head Prefect and won three scholarships—the Senior Bellilios, the Stewart and the Blake.

From Queen's College he proceeded to Hong Kong University, where he took his B. A. degree in Economics, History and International Law. While at the University he was awarded the special prize for International Law, presented by Dr. Theodore Baty, who was at that time one of the examiners at Hong Kong University. He spent the next two years after obtaining his degree as a master at St. Stephen's College, teaching history. This was during the war period; and as soon as the war finished he left for English and in 1919 was enrolled as an undergraduate at Trinity Hall, Cambridge, where he continued his studies in law. In 1922 he won his B.A. degree in the Law Tripos and in the same year was called to the Bar at the Inner Temple. He took his M.A. degree three years later, in 1925. In 1926 he returned to Hong Kong and was admitted to the local Bar, where he has practised ever since.

A Famous Case

Mr. Lo has from the beginning specialised in criminal cases. One of the most interesting and, in its way, one of the most famous, cases on which he has been engaged was a piracy case in 1930, when one Cheung Tan-kwong and 12 others were charged with piracy. The accused men, forming the crews of two junks, were caught by a British man-of-war and two local steamers while chasing, and, it was alleged, firing upon another junk. No arms were found on the pursuing junks when captured, it being alleged that they had been thrown overboard. The men were convicted, but Mr. Lo appealed and the appeal was heard, and allowed, by the Full Court in the following year. Mr. Alabaster, the Attorney General, and Mr. H. S. Fitzroy were for the Crown, while Mr. Lo, instructed by Messrs. Wilkinson and Grist, rerpesented the prisoners. The whole case was reviewed last year by the Privy Council.

Mr. Lo has also been engaged as counsel for the defence in a large number of murder cases.

Chinese Lawyer

Mr. Lo is a recognised expert in Chinese customs and laws, and is often called upon to give his opinion on points involving Chinese custom and legal procedure. He is a member of the Chinese Bar, under licence from the Minister of Justice, Nanking.

Mr. Lo is a past president of the Euro-American Returned Students' Association, having occupied the Chair in 1934. He is also a Past President of the Hong Kong University Union and a member of the Hong Kong University Graduates' Association.

While at Cambridge he played golf and tennis, but to-day makes walking his principal exercise and recreation. He is a member of the China Club, the Sports Club and the Jockey Club.

SUPERSTITIONS

(By The Rev. Dick Sheppard)

FOR some reasons which I have never fathomed quite level-headed people are reluctant to deny a charge of superstition.

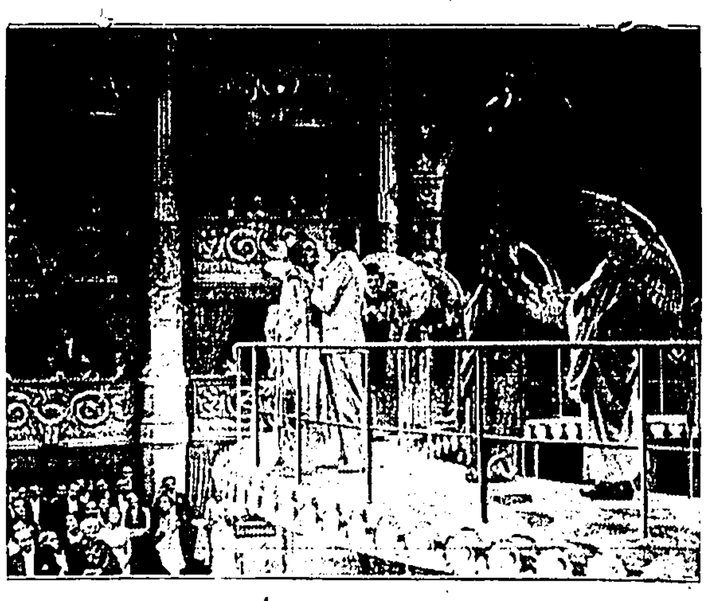
A man will tell you that, so far as he is aware, he is not superstitious—he does not mind sitting down 13 at table, is not dismayed by breaking a looking-glass, walks under ladders, and refuses to turn his money over at the sight of the new moon.

Yet as often as not — more often than not — he will end by admitting that probably he is superstitious about something or other without realising the fact.

It almost looks as though it were a matter of superstition to deny wholeheartedly that one is superstitious.

Superstition has been defined as an irrational fear of the unknown. That is a very different thing from the rational fear of the unknown.

To be afraid to assert boldly that one is not a victim of superstition suggests that one is afraid that perhaps, after all, there is something in it, and that the powers of evil will have their revenge.



The Paris Opera was reconstructed in Berlin for the Ufa film "Love Song," in which a performance of the opera "Madame Butterfly" is here shown during performance.

Most people are very naturally apprehensive about the unknown, and particularly about the great mystery of death.

Such moderate apprehension is compatible with sound religious faith. What is not compatible with faith is surrender of one's will to a belief in utterly irrational notions concerning the super-natural.

A youth may feel reasonably fearful as he enters the room in which he is to sit for an important examination. What would be entirely unreasonable would be for him to take with him that most prized talisman of the superstitious, a piece of hangman's rope by which a man had been executed.

Denial

To put one's trust in such things comes very near to being a denial of God's Providence, just as it denotes an extraordinarily unworthy conception of the ways of God to believe that He warns us of approaching death in the household by causing a picture to fall to the floor.

As you read this you probably agree with me. Yet so queerly rooted in our consciousness are some of these misdirected beliefs that if to-night in your house a picture fell to the ground with a thud the probability is that you would be just the least bit disturbed, even if outwardly you pooh-poohed the notion that the accident boded any ill.

Just In Case

It is much the same with walking under ladders. I am sure that most people avoid doing so merely to feel on the safe side, as it were — just in case there is something in it.

The rational reason for not walking under a ladder is generally on account of what is in the paint-pot up aloft!

Not long ago in the Strand there was a tall ladder set up against one of the buildings.

To avoid passing under it nearly everybody used the very small space on the pavement that was free. The result was considerable congestion of a very busy thoroughfare.

When I passed an hour or two later the ladder was still in position, but the crowd was walking unconcernedly beneath it.

"Not Unlucky"

The explanation? Simply that some one with a shrewd understanding of the unreasonableness of human credulity had fixed to the sides of the ladder a notice which read: "This ladder is not unlucky."

With equal authority you or I could declare that no ladder is unlucky. But the sheep-like pedestrians who accepted the one statement cannot be persuaded to believe the other.

Mercifully we have outlived the days when superstition led men to perpetrate cruel and horrible injustices, such as the burning of witches, though occasionally we hear of dreadful survivals of that sort.

Cry Of The Soul

To me it always seems that superstition of the modern sort is a pitiful cry of the soul of man for something outside himself to which he can pin his trust.

You may, perhaps, even argue, as does a distinguished Jesuit priest, that superstition has often helped to keep alive a belief in the hereafter, and that it has impressed upon mankind the conviction that there is something more to live for than what is found in the material world around us.

If you must admit that you are superstitious, why not go a step further and ask yourself honestly whether such irrational belief in the unknown is not a challenge to a nobler belief in the loving care of the Almighty Father?

About TOWN

Left.—Mr. Iain Wilson Lang and his bride, Miss Ann Lockhead Dickson, photographed after their wedding at the Union Church, Kennedy Road, last Saturday morning. ("Herald" photo). Above.—Julian, the only son of Mr. and Mrs. G. E. R. Divett, who left with his mother for a holiday in California last week.

THE King's Birthday Parade which was held at the Valley last Tuesday is likely to become historical for several reasons. It was the first parade of its kind since the accession of King Edward, and was therefore a unique occasion. Secondly, the St. John Ambulance Brigade, the Hong Kong Police Force, the Police Reserve and a Chinese detachment of the Naval Volunteer Force took part for the first time in a review of this kind. And finally, the number of spectators was unusually large. It is estimated that some 60,000 people were present, and this does not include the large numbers who watched the parade from vantage points along the hill road leading to Wongneichong Gap and other roads skirting the Valley. At every corner there were cars drawn up, with spectators crowding the roadside. Even on Stubbs Road groups of people had gathered to view the parade going on far below.

As regards the participation of several units of local forces for the first time, one can only say that this is all to the good. In a review of this kind, when all classes of the community gather to do honour to the King-Emperor, it is only right that the volunteer, as opposed to the regular, forces should participate. The invitation to them to do so is a recognition of the valuable part they play in the organised public life of the Colony. I know of at least one instance where three friends who went sailing in the morning purposely set out before seven o'clock so that their boatman, a proud member of the Naval Volunteer Force, might get back in time to take part in the parade. It was his special request that he should be enabled to do so. Such a spirit among the Chinese in the Colony is worth fostering.

Traffic Police

THE ordinary police on traffic duty must also get their meed of praise for arduous duties very satisfactorily performed. They deserve every congratulation for their efficient handling of unusually large crowds, both at the parade itself and in the evening afterwards at the Government House reception. The parking of the cars of the guests at that function provided a difficult problem, and many were accomodated as far away as on the open space below the Cathedral, while many people took advantage of the grounds of the Government offices to park their vehicles.

This parking problem, even at ordinary times, is becoming really acute, and it would be interesting to know what the authorities propose to do about it. The official car park on the Kowloon side, near the Star Ferry, is fast becoming inadequate for the number of persons wishing to use it; while on the island, in the Central district, the conditions are lamentable. There is little or no provision, also, for owner-drivers attending the cinemas. The existing parking spaces, when there are any, entail a walk of quarter of a mile or more, which is not very pleasant when weather conditions are unfavourable. I must admit that it is easy to complain, but not so easy to suggest a practical remedy. However, that is not my business; it is the charge of the authorities concerned.

Mainly about WOMEN

IT is difficult to get used to the idea that Lady Southorn has really left and for good. One has the feeling that some vital part of the Colony has suddenly fallen away.

It will be good to have news, anyway, of what she is doing in Gambia. And, first of all, what impressions she has on arriving in a spot so far removed from anything she has known as yet. The voyage to England, she writes, was very hot, "so hot that correspondence has suffered." But a cool breeze was met in the Red Sea that at once made a difference to life.

MISS Anna May Wong, China's pride, is very busy in Peiping studying the A.B.C. of Mandarin. She has taken a house and is trying to find plenty of time for her work. We were hoping to have her back in Hong Kong for a longer stay, but with the choice of work she has before her we shall most likely be disappointed.

The first choice is the possibility of co-starring in a play or film with the famous actor Mei Lan-fang. In preparation Anna May has been studying the intricate arts of the Chinese theatre. She finds that even for her there is much to learn. Plays are being written especially for this clever pair to act in together. We only hope that whatever they do together—it will certainly be something perfect of its kind—will be screened so as to reach a wider public.

Then, Anna May has received two cablegrams from Europe. Will she come to London? Will she come to Paris? In London they want her to star in that big success "Lady Precious Stream," and then tour through the provinces playing in different towns. The Parisian stage, too, is eager to have her again. So there is a possibility that she will cut short her stay in China and return to Europe. However, her plans are still indefinite.

Even if her stay in China is short, the next picture she makes will certainly be something to look forward to. Her grace on the screen, the art of her movements, were a delight even before she had come in contact with the Chinese theatre. But now, having worked with Mei Lan-fang, knowing the background she has as yet only been able to feel vaguely, this talented actress will be able to give us a more studied interpretation of her Chinese parts.

WE have had an interesting visitor in Hong Kong during the past few weeks in the person of Mrs. Stratton-Brown. Arriving on the same boat as Lady Caldecott, whom, incidentally, she has known for some years, she has been staying here on holiday with friends.

Mrs. Stratton-Brown, from Kuala Lumpur, is one of the only two women who own rubber plantations in Malaya. She is an interesting woman who loves the East and has travelled extensively in China and Japan. She enjoys going in small boats to visit parts little known and then she writes about her adventures. Her son, Commander Stratton-Brown, has inherited his mother's spirit. Quite recently he sailed round the coast of Australia in a ketch.

THE lovely Countess de Courseulles, the wife of the Manager of the Bank of Indo-China, who arrived in the Colony a short while back, has already made many friends not only among the English, but among the Chinese community, as she speaks the Shanghai dialect very well. The Countess, we learn, was one of the three sisters well known as Shanghai's most beautiful women. One of the few cases we know of where Shanghai has lost and Hong Kong gained!

Capt. Milne Back Again

CAPT. J. D. Milne, a member of the United Services Recreation Club Mixed Doubles and "A" Division League tennis teams, has returned to the Colony after a short holiday in the North.

Lawn Bowls At U.S.R.C.

THE game of lawn bowls seems to have caught on at the United Services Recreation Club, several players being seen on their green every evening of the week. There seems to be so much activity there that it gives one the impression that they may be considering entering the local League next season, but, unfortunately, their green is not large enough to accommodate three rinks. Dr. Smalley was one of the first to use the green.

K.C.C. Interport Nominations

A. HYDE-LAY, R. P. Phillips, N. J. Bebbington and R. G. Craig have been nominated by the Kowloon Cricket Club as possible Colony Interport lawn bowlers for the trials which will be held next month.

Frank Read In Action

A very interesting tennis knock-about was witnessed at Club de Recreio last Saturday, when Frank Read, who formerly played for the K.C.C. in the League, was seen in opposition to A. V. Gosano. Read, who has lost none of his fluency of stroke play, sent over some dazzling forehand shots, while his volleying was fairly good considering he has not played for two seasons.

V.R.C. Opening Gala

THE Victoria Recreation Club are opening their swimming gala season with an evening programme on Tuesday, July 7, commencing at about 5.30 p.m. It is understood that this will not be a long programme.

Beltrao Interested In Tennis

ONE of the most promising tennis players at Club de Recreio is N. Beltrao, the Colony Interport soccer star and a hockey player of no mean ability. Beltrao is fairly sound at tennis, but it has only been recently that he has been paying serious attention to this game. Should he decide to give soccer a year's rest, he will give all his time to tennis.

Water-Polo At Y.M.C.A.

ARRANGEMENTS are now in hand for staging the first water-polo game at the European Y.M.C.A. pool for over two seasons. The following players will form the nucleus of a team which it is hoped will be reinforced by others later on: H. G. Lange, S. A. Fowler, F. Fowler, J. Ferrett, Frank Read, R. Goldman, and G. Milne. It is hoped to stage a friendly (mixed) game with the Mak Ngah Association of Canton soon.

I understand that arrangements are now in hand, and should Miss Yeung accept she will go to America after the Berlin Games.

When Brothers Get Together

A. HUNG and D. Hung, who are playing tennis for the Craigengower Cricket Club in the League this year, have shown vast improvement in their play. This is due to the lessons they have received from their elder brother, W. C. Hung, the C.R.C. tennis captain, who coaches them whenever time permits.

Keen Navy Soccer Official

COMDR. Arbuthnot, who has only just arrived in the Colony, is already taking the greatest interest in football, and it is to be hoped that with such a keen soccer Officer, the Navy will be able to field a much improved team by the time the next season comes round.

Learning Bowls In Their Youth

Choy Wing-chiu Keeps In Trim

CHOY WING-CHIU, the novice jockey, does not believe in slacking, even though the summer recess is now being enjoyed by most members of the Club. He keeps fit by going out occasionally for a morning gallop, while he plays badminton almost every day.

Successful Riding School

THE Hong Kong Riding School, which is being run by Mr. R. H. ("Bob") Charles, is proving to be very popular. It is situated on Tai Hang Hill and old and young of all communities take lessons from "Bob."

Fire Brigade Golfer

ONE of the keenest golfers in town to-day is Mr. H. T. Brooks, the genial Superintendent of the Fire Brigade. He goes down to the links at Happy Valley almost every day and thoroughly enjoys every game.

Trade Commissioner Pony-Owner

MR. Vilas Osatanadas, the Siamese Trade Commissioner, who is a very keen follower of tennis, has found a new interest, namely pony-racing. He secured a pony at the recent public roup of race ponies and it is understood that he will be racing it when the season resumes in September.

Tennis At E.K.I.S.?

WHEN Mr. A. White takes over the Headmastership of the Ellis Kadoorie Indian School, it is understood that he will make an effort to revive tennis at that school. In former years the school boasted two fairly good courts, but these have gradually deteriorated owing to lack of interest.

Young Indians Coming Back

AFTER a year's absence from the local-football League, I am given to understand that the Young Indians' Football Club will be re-entering the Second Division this coming season, while the Radio Sports Club will not be participating in the League.

Radio Hockey Setbacks

THE hockey team of the Radio Sports Club will be greatly weakened this coming season as Gurbachan Singh, J. Grewal and Jaggeet Singh are all going on leave in September.

"Buster" Hollands Starts Early

"BUSTER" Hollands, the eldest son of W. E. Hollands the Police bowler and who is only 14 years old, has entered the novices' bowls competition at the P.R.C. He is believed to be the youngest competitor ever to have entered for the event.

Goal-keeper Going Forward

WONG WAH-KAI, the South China "B" team goal-keeper, is giving up this position and intends training as a forward. He played on the right wing in several games last season and was quite useful.

Ladies' Bowls At Taikoo

I see from the notice board at the Taikoo Docks Recreation Club that Mrs. Chalmers is leading the ladies' section of the lawn bowls competition of the club with 12 points out of seven games played and 59 shots up. Mrs. Polson is second with eight points for six games played and is 31 shots up.

YEOMEN OF THE GUARD

Inspected By His Majesty

ANCIENT TRADITIONS RECALLED

London, Yesterday.

A picturesque ceremony took place in the grounds of Buckingham Palace yesterday, when His Majesty the King, wearing the full-dress uniform of Colonel-in-Chief of the Welsh Guards, inspected the royal bodyguard known as the Yeoman of the Guard, who in their scarlet and gold uniforms are usually on duty at the Tower of London. The Queen Mother, from a Palace balcony, was an interested spectator of the ancient ceremony, at which the King presented the Captain and other officers with ebony sticks banded with gold and silver.

The King, addressing the men, expressed the pride he felt in the presence of Her Majesty in taking part in the annual inspection, and he thanked the bodyguard for the part they took in the ceremonies connected with the lying-in-state and funeral of King George. After mentioning that most of them had attended his father on many occasions, he recalled that the royal bodyguard could trace its traditions through 451 years of its existence, and said he was confident that those proud traditions would continue to be worthily upheld.—British Wireless Service.

R.A.F. DISPLAY AT HENDON

Final Rehearsal Goes Off Well

London, Yesterday.

Several of the latest models took part in the final rehearsal yesterday for to-day's annual Royal Air Force display at Hendon. Large crowds of school children attended, and, although owing to rain it was found necessary to curtail the programme, a thrilling exhibition of flying was witnessed. Particularly interesting was the radio telephone demonstration of instructional flying, in which the instructors' explanations of the various evolutions as they were undertaken was closely followed by the spectators.—British Wireless Service.

TOC H LEAGUE

Coming-Of-Age Celebrated

London, Yesterday.

The overseas members of Toc H, who have come to England for the coming of age celebrations of that organisation, were received by His Majesty the King at Buckingham Palace yesterday afternoon. The Duchess of York attended the festival service of the Toc H League of women helpers at St. Paul's Cathedral last evening. About 2,500 members of the League were present.—British Wireless Service.

CONSTABLE IN TROUBLE

Absent From Duty Without Leave

Yiu Shi-li, a Wei-hai-wei constable, appeared before Mr. J. H. B. Lee at the Central Magistracy yesterday morning, charged with being absent without leave, and was sentenced to three months' hard labour.

Mr. L. H. Calthrop A.S.P., for the Police, stated that the defendant was on anti-piracy guard on the s.s. Yunan on June 16 and prior to the ship's sailing from Swatow the Customs Authorities found six bags of woolfram ore in the guards' cabin and under his bed. When the ship arrived in Hong Kong on June 17 the guards were ordered to report, but defendant did not do so. On Friday he was seen on the s.s. Hupeh, bound for Wei-hai-wei, and was arrested.

THE NEGUS IN GENEVA

Message To World Press

ABYSSINIANS "BRUTALLY ATTACKED"

"SUNDAY HERALD" SPECIAL

Geneva, Yesterday.

The Negus received the international press yesterday afternoon at the Carlton Hotel. After having addressed several words of welcome to the pressmen in Amharic, expressing the conviction that justice for his cause would procure him a hearing, his secretary read a short statement in French, to the effect that in view of the fact that the Abyssinian people had been brutally attacked the League should at least not permit might to triumph, as otherwise the existence of the League would be imperilled. Haile Selassie would concentrate all his power on defending his just cause.

His Government in Abyssinia was the only one that had any legal basis for existence. The Abyssinian people have not forfeited the right to govern themselves. The League of Nations has no right to support a Government that has broken the treaties entered into voluntarily and whose authority in Abyssinia is very precarious.—Trans-Ocean Service.

INTEREST CLAIM SUCCEEDS

Defendants Not In Court

JUDGMENT GIVEN BY CHIEF JUSTICE

Judgment was awarded Messrs. Asia Lands Ltd., plaintiffs, yesterday morning by the Chief Justice, His Honour Sir Atholl MacGregor, in their claim for $4,550 in respect of interest due on the second mortgage of Inland Lot No. 1507 and Section "A" of the remaining portion of Inland Lot No. 946, given by the defendants, Tong Siu-yuen and Tong Siu-sik, to the plaintiffs on December 28, 1933, to secure the repayment of a principal sum of $30,000 with interest at 7 per cent.

The defendants were absent, although the claim was against the first defendant.

Mr. H. C. Macnamara, instructed by Mr. H. J. Armstrong, of Messrs. Deacons, appeared for the plaintiffs.

Mr. G. W. Greene, Manager of the plaintiff Company, stated in evidence that his company had certain claims against the two defendants. The mortgage in question was a Hong Kong mortgage. The defendants jointly owed his company $4,550 up to April 30, which amount was the subject of the claim.

Foreign Writ Issued

Witness had instructed Messrs. Deacons to make a search in the Land Office and had discovered that the first defendant was entitled to certain interests on three lots and had a half share in his brother's property. Witness did not know where the first defendant was and had instructed Messrs. Deacons to issue a foreign writ of attachment against him.

Mr. H. J. Armstrong, partner of Messrs. Deacons, stated that he had been given certain instructions by the plaintiff company and, in consequence of an order by the Acting Chief Justice, had advertised a foreign writ of attachment in the Hong Kong Government Gazette and also in the South China Morning Post. The first defendant, as far as he knew, was supposed to be in London, but could not be found.

Mr. Macnamara, in concluding his case, said he was merely asking for an ordinary judgment as the property had already been sold and the proceeds paid into court. His Lordship granted judgment.

ROYAL MARINES AT DINNER

HAPPY FUNCTION AT H.K. HOTEL

The Hong Kong and South China Branch of the Royal Marines Old Comrades Association held a most successful reunion dinner at the Hong Kong Hotel last night. This dinner was the first held for some considerable time, and the hope was expressed by those present that it should become an annual event.

Commodore C. G. Sedgwick was the guest of honour, and the members attending included the following:—Col. A. C. Harrison, D.S.O., Wing Commander A. G. Bishop, O.B.E., A.F.C., both of whom had formerly served in the Royal Marine Artillery, Capt. F. M. Bramall, R.M., Capt. D. J. Grey, R.M., Messrs. Grimmitt, Kingdon, Venables, McNay, H. V. Pearse, Martin, O'Neill, Fisher, Bethell, Thompson and Alexander.

After an excellent dinner served in the Jacobean Room of the Hotel, the health of His Majesty King Edward VIII, the Colonel-in-Chief of the Royal Marines, was duly honoured.

Capt. Bramall, who was in the chair, then proposed the health of Commodore Sedgwick, who replied with a few well-chosen words, wishing the Association every success in the future.

The party then broke up into small groups, and, aided by suitable refreshments, swapped yarns, thus proving the value of the old adage, "tell that to the Marines!"

FIGHTING SPEECH BY TITULESCU

ITALIAN NOTE HANDED TO MR. EDEN

CHILEAN REPRESENTATIVE ASKS REGARDING COVENANT REFORM

Geneva, Yesterday.

When the Council met privately yesterday to discuss the agenda, the Italian representative handed Mr. Anthony Eden, British Foreign Secretary, a letter couched in conciliatory terms, explaining why Italy is not sending a delegation to the Council and expressing confidence that an improvement in the situation would permit Italy to resume collaboration with the League.

The Polish Government has informed the President that it is in favour of the lifting of sanctions.

The question of the reform of the League Covenant was raised by the Chilean representative at the private meeting of the Council. He declared that there was a real danger that their general responsibilities might involve them in a conflict in which they had no interest, direct or indirect. It must be possible for one part of humanity to remain outside disputes, even in case of catastrophe.

M. Livitnoff (U.S.S.R.) expressed the opinion that the Covenant had not been utilised.

M. Titulescu (Rumania) in a fighting speech said that to criticise the Covenant instead of the men who did not apply it was a profound injustice. The Little Entente would accept proposals giving more force to the Covenant, but would never agree to touch the principle of the equality of the nations.

M. Delbos (France) stated that the French Government was far from reckoning the Covenant as responsible for failures in no way attributable to it.

Mr. Anthony Eden (Britain) suggested that the Council should await the Assembly discussion before taking decisions.

Previously Ras Nasibu (Abyssinia) had been invited to the Council, but discussion of the Italo-Ethiopian dispute was adjourned to the meeting of the Assembly on Tuesday next. — Reuter.

ITALIAN MEMORANDUM

Geneva: In a secret session of the League Council, with which the proceedings began yesterday afternoon, the President of the Council, the British Foreign Secretary, Mr. Anthony Eden, read a memorandum from the new Italian Foreign Minister, Count Ciano, which stated that for known reasons Italy could not participate in the discussion on the Abyssinian conflict and was thus also unable to take part in the discussions on the Locarno question. The Italian Government, however, hoped that the situation would soon be cleared up, thus enabling Italy to co-operate in all the work at Geneva.

Little time was in any case devoted to the Abyssinian question, since the Council realised that it could take no decisive steps in this matter now that it had been put on the agenda of the plenary session.—Trans-Ocean Service.

KOWLOON UNION CHURCH

The service will be preceded by a short organ recital, at which Mr. J. Anderson Miller, L.R.A.M., will play "Choral Song" (Wesley), "Intermezzo" from Sonata in F (Luard Selby), Variations on an original theme "Nimrod" (Elgar), and Choral Prelude on "Rockingham" (Parry).

SCHMELING'S RETURN

Tumultous Welcome In Germany

CROWDS BESIEGE BOXING HERO

"SUNDAY HERALD" SPECIAL

Frankfurt, Yesterday.

The airship Hindenburg, with Max Schmeling on board, was greeted with a hurricane of cheers when it arrived at Frankfurt aerodrome and was secured to the mooring mast. Enthusiasm mounted to fever heat when at that moment Max Schmeling alighted, while the other passengers, as usual, only disembarked when the ship had been brought into the shed.

The crowds broke the barriers, and it was only with the greatest difficulty that the popular boxer could greet his wife, the well-known film star Anny Ondra. Max and his wife then drove through the streets lined densely with cheering multitudes, in an open car to the town hall, where an official reception awaited them.

Arrival In Berlin

Berlin: The present idol of Germany, Max Schmeling, was awaited by countless millions at the Tempelhof aerodrome in Berlin, where he landed safely at 10 p.m. yesterday from Frankfurt, in an aeroplane placed at his disposal by Dr. Goebbels, Reich Minister of Propaganda. A perfect tornado of applause broke out and delayed for some minutes the official ceremony of reception.

The Fuehrer's deputy, Regional Leader Brueckner, Secretary of State Funk of the Propaganda Ministry, the Deputy for the Reich Sport Leader, Herr Tschammer und Osten, united in voicing a hearty welcome.—Trans-Ocean Service.

TRAIN DERAILED IN PALESTINE

TWO BRITISH SOLDIERS PINNED UNDER ENGINE

TELEPHONE LINESMEN AMBUSHED

Jerusalem, Yesterday.

A passenger train was derailed through the removal of a rail on the Lydda-Haifa line yesterday. Two soldiers of the Cheshire Regiment escorting the train were pinned under the engine, and one of them was killed. Arabs subjected the train to heavy fire, wounding several passengers, including the two soldiers. It is reported that the engine-driver was killed and the fireman injured. Later a patrol of troops arrived and dispersed the attackers.

Twenty miles north of Jerusalem a party of telephone linesmen, headed by a British engineer and escorted by four Cameron Highlanders, were ambushed at dawn. The engineer motored to Ramallah for reinforcements. When these arrived they found the two Highlanders wounded, but the Arabs were dispersed after suffering casualties. — Reuter's Bulletin Service.

GIBBS DENTIFRICE

gets to the "root" of decay

Teeth must work to live, the mastication of crisp hard foods and the regular massage of the gums are necessary to their existence, for crunching and massage are exercise and exercise is as essential to teeth as it is to every other organ of the body.

Strict cleanliness is essential too —not just a mere brushing of the front and back surfaces, but a cleansing which dislodges the food particles in the crevices, around the necks and between the teeth.

The pleasant antiseptic bacteria destroying foam of Gibbs Dentifrice is ideal. Gibbs really cleans the teeth—making them healthy, and sparkling white.

Your Dentist, whom you should visit twice a year, recommends Gibbs, the perfect Dentifrice which cleanses every tooth surface.

The Congregation of The Third Order of St. Francis of Assisi.

In addition to the St. Anthony's Bread Fund for the distribution of food to the poor of the Parish, the congregation has undertaken another humanitarian work, the running of St. Francis Boys' Club, which will soon open at No. 689, Shanghai Street, 1st Floor. The teaching of poor little children is characteristically a Franciscan work, and one that would please our Seraphic Father.

MANCHUKUO AND GERMANY

First Official Representative Welcomed To Berlin

Berlin, Yesterday.

Mr. Kato, the first official representative of Manchukuo at Berlin, arrived yesterday and was officially welcomed at the station by the members of the Japanese Legation. It is stated that Mr. Kato's task is to put into operation the trade agreement between Germany and Manchukuo.—Reuter.

ROOSEVELT LAUDED

Orgy Of Enthusiasm At Convention

BUT STIFF FIGHT AHEAD

Philadelphia, Yesterday.

Frenzied scenes were witnessed at the Democratic Convention when President Roosevelt's re-nomination as the Party's candidate was proposed by Judge Mack, who lauded the New Deal, stating: "The credit for all this is due to our leader, his splendid Cabinet and the splendid Congress which backed him up to the last ditch," whereupon every State delegation paraded the hall and galleries, roaring approval.

The orgy of enthusiasm lasted an hour and not only broke all previous convention records, but also the electrical cheer recorder in the hall.

Nevertheless, the fact that President Roosevelt is going to have a stiff fight in November is indicated by the odds offered in New York, where considerable sums have been placed at 5 to 7 against Mr. Roosevelt's re-election. — Reuter.

Judgment Reserved By Privy Council

Judgment was reserved by the Judicial Committee of the Privy Council last month in the appeal by Mr. Frederick Alexander James, fruit merchant, of Adelaide, from the Australian Government's regulations under its Dried Fruits Acts, 1928-35.

The hearing had already occupied over a fortnight.

The High Court of Australia had found that the Commonwealth had power to make the trade regulations under section 51 of the Constitution, and Mr. James appealed, urging that section 92 said that trade was to be "absolutely free."

Well-Known Figures Seen At Hotel Cecil

Last night the Health, Strength Sports and Athletic Club held a Flannel dance at the Hotel Cecil, where members and their friends laughed and danced away a most enjoyable evening.

Since the formation of the Club everything which directly contributes towards increasing the health and enjoyment of the members has been encouraged, and it has been found that dances, such as that held last night, provide members with further opportunities of meeting under enjoyable circumstances. The vim and enjoyment which marked the evening are a direct tribute to the objects of the Club, for it was apparent to even the most casual observers that all members and their guests experienced a full measure of enjoyment.

To make the event an even more outstanding success, the internationally-known figures, the "Ovaltine" Country Girls, dressed in their charming English costumes so reminiscent of the idyllic English country-side of a century ago, were present. These old-world English figures moved amongst the dancers serving health and energy to them all in drinks of delicious Ovaltine "Cold," which everybody found very palatable. Some did not realise before that Ovaltine could be prepared so simply hot or cold, and the Country Girls gave several demonstrations to an interested crowd gathered around them.

A corner of the Ball Room was occupied by an "Ovaltine" kiosk, fashioned on the lines of an old English inn. From here the "Ovaltine" country girls, with their capable Chinese assistants, drew their supplies of this delicious beverage.

At the conclusion of the evening everyone was in entire agreement that the most delicious beverage for building health and strength, renewing vigour and energy is "Ovaltine" Cold.

As a parting message, the revellers were reminded by the Country Maids that "Ovaltine" Cold is ideal for picnics and launch parties. "Just fill your thermos flask" and know that you have a supply of an enjoyable drink which will be most appreciated by everyone, particularly after a long swim.—Advt.

As security for the proper performance of the works under this contract, the successful tenderer will be required to deposit in cash, the sum of $1,000 with the Colonial Treasury, which sum will be retained for a period of six months from the date of completion of the works in lieu of the usual retention money.

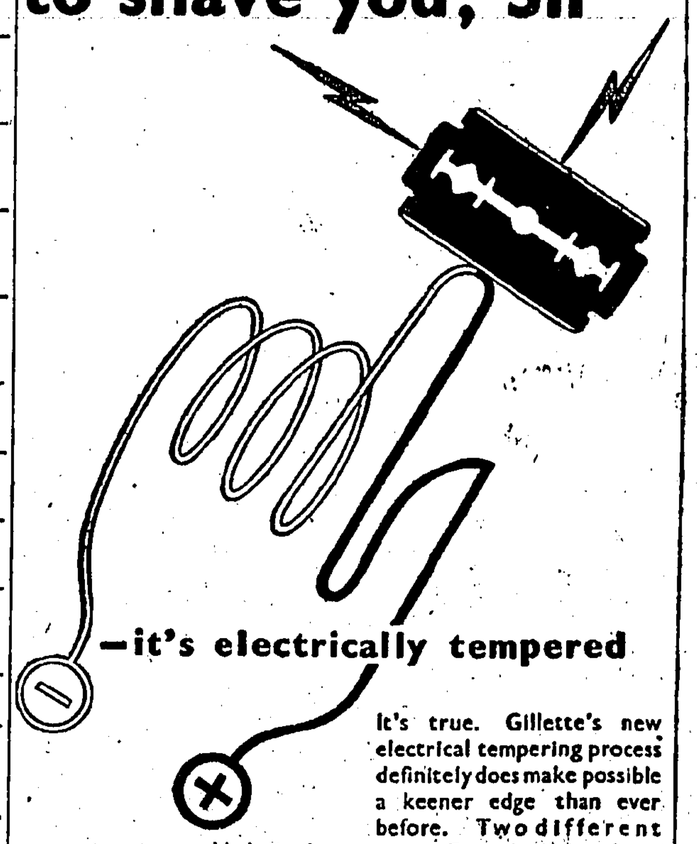
The Government does not bind itself to accept the lowest or any tender.

Keener than ever to shave you, Sir



—it's electrically tempered

It's true. Gillette's new electrical tempering process definitely does make possible a keener edge than ever before. Two different temperings in one blade is the secret. Extra hardness down the sides is attained by Gillette's special process, which softens the centre of the steel without interfering in any way with the hardness of the cutting edges. Result—while the blades are soft enough in the centre to bend to the razor, the incredibly hard steel at the sides can be honed to a keener edge than you've ever known. Moreover, the edge stays keen longer, thus giving many more shaves per blade.

Messrs. Harriman's Weekly Report

Messrs. G. A. Harriman and Co.'s weekly share report and market review issued at noon yesterday states:—

The market during the week under review was very active and rates were well maintained with a consistent enquiry in all sections. Immediately after the settlement all local issues put on renewed strength and mining issues were also again very active with Paracale Gumaus, Atoks and Big Wedge taking the lead. In the investment section Hong Kong Trams continued in strong demand having changed hands at the advancing rates of $9.75/10.80 cash and $10.90 to $11.00 August. Hong Kong Electrics came to business at $50½ cash and $51.25 August and more shares could be placed at these rates. Dairy Farms were put through at $19½. Hong Kong Telephones (old) remained unchanged at $25. Among the minor issues Cements improved on good demand with a fairly large turnover being put through between $8.70 and $9.30 cash $9.40/50 August. Hotels were dealt in at $4.50/4.55 closing in demand at $4.60 cash and $4.70 August. Providents (old) met good enquiries with sales effected at $1. China Lights (old) improved on strong demand to $10.75. Philippine mining shares continued on the active side right up to the close with Paracale Gumaus, and Big Wedge showing great improvement the former touching the new high record of 68 cts. and the latter 48 cts., Atoks were taken up to 66 cts. Demonstrations were put through at $1.06 to $1.09. Antamoks changed hands at $4.40/-4.50. United Paracale firmed up at the close with buyers at the improved rate of $1.12. Sterling counters were quite steady with Hong Kong Banks changing hands at $1,585. Unions were enquired for at $520 without attracting sellers. The tone of the market at the close is very steady with a great deal more activity and interest being shown in all sections; trading conditions are also fast improving probably due to the improvement in trade.

Canton Insurances $255.
H.K. Hotels $4.40/4.55.

ECONOMICS IN FRANCE

Nation Pulling Itself Together

Paris, Yesterday.

Despite the lowering of the French bankrate the exodus of gold has absolutely stopped. Indeed, M. Vincent Auriol, Minister of Finance, told the Chamber yesterday afternoon, that gold is now entering the country. Some 305,000,000 francs' worth arrived on Wednesday, and he added that what was even more important was a considerable extension of the forward rates on sterling and dollars.

Rentes had arisen appreciably and the emission of the national defence bonds had exceeded the reimbursements. "The nation," he said "is pulling itself together." — Reuter.

The grounds, with that fine view of the Peak looming up so close, were looking lovely, all the trees being decorated up to their full height with coloured electric lights, and the huge illuminated insignia of His Majesty on the facade was visible from across the harbour.

The Band of the East Lancashire Regiment and the Indian Pipe Band of the Hong Kong Brigade H.K.S.R.A. played throughout the evening, as well as a dance band in the ballroom.

There was naturally not a great deal of colour among the ladies' frocks as in other years, and black, white and mauve were the predominating shades. It is difficult among so vast a crowd of smart and lovely dresses to know where to pick out any particular ones here and there. Mrs. Bathurst's dark brown lace frock with a new neckline standing up in a crisp frill was very attractive. Mrs. W. T. Stanton, who was noticed dancing, was wearing a white frock with a small black pattern in it.

Miss Chauvin had on a cream lace frock with a broad brown satin sash. Another lace—or, rather, net—dress was a pink one worn by Miss Dodwell, which was originally decorated with appliqued coloured bunches of flowers strewn over it. Mrs. Brigham was in a green crepe frock, with sandals and bag all very smartly matching. Mrs. Frederick was in black lace with a large white flower to relieve it on her right shoulder.

Another very pretty black frock was Mrs. Persse's. It was of georgette with "midnight blue" sequins scattered sparsely over it, glistening with her every movement. Draperies hanging from the shoulders gave it a finished and unusual air.

Miss Rose Lee Fook, third daughter of Mrs. Lee G. Fook and the late Mr. Lee G. Fook, will leave the Colony on the s.s. Conte Verde to-day to be married to Mr. Ng Kee Geow, B.Sc. (Eng.), eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. Ng Ho of Ipoh, F.M.S. The father of the bride-to-be was formerly connected with the National City Bank of New York, while Mr. Ng Ho is a very well-known contractor in the Federated Malay States.

M. J. Cochet, general manager in the Far East of the Messageries Maritimes, is at present on a visit to the local offices. He is registered at the Gloucester Hotel.

Mr. M. George Serlui, the well-known stockbroker, sailed yesterday by the s.s. President Jefferson for Manila, where he will confer with business interests and visit friends. He will then sail for Singapore, where he will be met by Mrs. Serlui and continue to Java and India, going up to Darjeeling, where Mr. and Mrs. Serlui will be the guests of Their Highnesses the Raja and Rani of Nayagarh. They will return to the Colony at about the end of September, when Mr. Serlui will open a brokerage office in Hong Kong.

DURING their stay in Hong Kong, Lady St. Davids and her daughter, the Hon. Leigarde Philipps, were entertained by Dr. Li Shu-fan and his daughter on board his motor yacht, Phoenix. Lady St. David's was charmed with what she termed the "wonderful and unsurpassed beauty" of Hong Kong.

PERSONALIA

THE many friends of Mr. D. Davidson, popularly known as Don, who left for a holiday in Canada recently, will be interested to learn that he has just become engaged to Miss Jennie Stewart of Victoria, B.C.

Dr. and Mrs. W. M. Stevens left the Colony yesterday by the s.s. Rawalpindi after spending a short holiday here. They will visit Europe before going on to America, where they will spend their long leave. Dr. Stevens is connected with the University of Nanking.

Dr. and Mrs. R. H. Kotewall left the Colony yesterday for a week's holiday, in the course of which they will visit Canton and Macau.

Mr. P. E. Nagglar, the newly appointed French Ambassador to China, passed through the Colony on Friday on the m.v. Felix Roussel on his way to Peiping, where he will take up his new post at the French Embassy. He was entertained at an informal luncheon party by the French Consul-General in Hong Kong, M. Leurquin.

Another local resident who left by the s.s. Scharnhorst yesterday was Mr. G. Arnold of the Standard-Vacuum Oil Company. He is proceeding on six months' holiday in England and will probably make the return trip via Siberia.

We understand that Miss G. Lakeman will be taking over the duties of Mr. G. Arnold during his absence on leave. Mr. Arnold was in charge of the Advertising Department of the Standard-Vacuum Oil Company.

LT.-Colonel D. C. Wilson, Commanding the H.K.S.R.A., left Hong Kong a week ago yesterday by the s.s. Sirdhana. He will be away in Singapore for about three weeks.

Major and Mrs. Dowling also left that day by the s.s. Antenor, on a round trip to Japan. Mrs. Dowling, who is one of the Colony's leading lady tennis players, had the misfortune to be in hospital most of the month following an operation on her knee. It is to be hoped that she will return from her holiday fully recovered.

Another couple who also left by the same ship were Surgeon Captain and Mrs. G. D. G. Fergusson, also for a holiday in Japan.

Mr. and Mrs. Weldon, who have been away on leave—also in popular Japan—for nearly a month, returned to Hong Kong last Friday.

THE many friends of M. Dufaure de la Prade, who was formerly Consul-General for France here, will be interested to learn that he has just been appointed French Minister to Afghanistan at Kabul.

Mr. W. Prang, manager of Schmidt and Co., is leaving the Colony on July 2 by the Asama Maru for a holiday in Germany. Mr. Prang intends to settle down in South Africa after his holiday.

Mr. E. K. Scott, who is the agent in Shanghai for Messrs. Dorman Long and Company, paid a short business visit to the Colony about 10 days ago and has only just returned to the Northern port by the R.M.S. Empress of Japan.

Top: Mrs. Ingpen, wife of Capt. R. L. L. Ingpen, will be spending the summer in Japan. (King's Studio).

Left: Mrs. H. S. V. Mossop, wife of the popular local solicitor, and a very keen supporter of the Girl Guide movement, will be leaving the Colony for good next Autumn.

THE King's Birthday Parade was held in as perfect weather as one could reasonably hope for at this time of year. After the intense heat of the past week, a breeze made it very much pleasanter for the troops as well as the spectators.

There were several pretty and smart frocks to be seen, cool colours and materials being naturally most in evidence. Mrs. Arbuthnot was wearing a pretty pink linen suit with a big natural straw hat trimmed with ribbon. Mrs. Clutterbuck's sleeveless silk frock was of a tartan pattern with red the predominating colour, and she wore a very jaunty straw "sailor" hat with a turned-up brim.

Mrs. Morris was sitting in the front row with her two daughters. She was wearing a black and white patterned crepe-de-Chine frock; Miss Sylvia Morris was in a cool-looking check dress with a smart little hat trimmed in the front with a large white bow. Her sister was wearing one of those attractive Hungarian-style blouses with a pale grey skirt, cunningly slit up at the hem, the sides of the slits being ornamented with buttons.

Mrs. D'Arcy Evans had on a very pretty and becoming silk frock of pale blue flowers on a white ground, with elbow length "bishop" sleeves and a short cape. Mrs. Roupell was in a lovely shade of powder blue which suited her very well. Her pretty silk sunshade combined the pale blue of her frock with the navy of her small straw hat. Mrs. Digby, who had two of her little girls with her looking so nice in their green linen frocks, was wearing navy blue with a white pin spot and a large navy hat.

Mrs. Fordham was there in a silk frock of a flowery pattern, as were Mrs. Campling in white and Mrs. Russell and Mrs. Holmes, both of whom were in blue.

Miss J. Siryk, above, the charming daughter of Mr. P. J. Siryk, the General Manager of the Publicity & Commercial Bureau of Hong Kong, is planning a summer vacation away from Hong Kong for a space of two months. The holiday will be spent in Harbin and she will be leaving in the early part of next month.

THE many friends of Mr. and Mrs. H. S. V. Mossop will learn with much regret that they will be leaving for England on September 25, next and will not be returning to the Colony. Mr. Mossop, who is a member of the legal firm of Messrs. Johnson, Stokes and Master, will join his father who is in practice in London.

Miss Inez Lopes (Nena), daughter of Mr. and Mrs. S. A. Lopes, celebrated her birthday last week-end. She gave a Dinner Dance at the Hong Kong and Shanghai Hotel, at which many friends were present. Miss Lopes received many letters of congratulations and telegrams from her friends and relatives in Shanghai.

LITTLE NOTES of Great Importance

by Esther

DOLLY VARDEN'S have a grand new selection of afternoon ensembles, swagger-backed with wide, full shoulders. And the materials! . . . I scarcely could take my eyes off the new angel-skin georgettes, plain and figured silks . . . There is a smart hand-tailored unity — white, with a little navy spotted tie. So cool-looking and neat! Another beauty is a navy blue lace frock, crisp and dainty, finished off with a white posy at the shoulder. And that is not all . . . but who could tell it all? . . . such a lot of new and original things . . . and how reasonably priced!

A man is a man for all that . . . Sometimes we love them, sometimes we hate them . . . but all the time we want to please them. And just watch some of the stocklingless dames . . . do you think any man can love those mosquito-bitten legs? No, you positively have to wear stockings ! ! And when they are Belle-Sharmeers, which our pet friends MAIZEE'S have imported for us, it is a joy to wear them. Sheer as a cobweb, with elastic tops, individually tailored, from knee-length to extra long. The colours are: Halo, Sundra and Parade. And speaking of legs . . . how about faces? Helena Rubinstein knows all about that and MAIZEE'S are selling her beauty aids.

Would you like a new face . . . ? I bet you there are thousands of women who would . . . Those are the ones spending half of their husbands' earnings on gilded boxes and crystal bottles. But others just smile into their mirrors and know that they are beautiful . . . those are the women with plain common sense . . . they use MIMI Hollywood beauty aids. They have no money to waste and know that what is in the jar does the trick. Recommended by your favourite film-stars. Somebody made us mad the other day by saying that in order to have good clothes you must have lots of money. "We can take you into one of the smartest shops in town," we them at a medium price." With that we turned on our heels and walked straight into LANE, CRAWFORD'S. And here is what we saw: said, "select clothes by leading designers and buy most original cotton frocks, linen dresses, organdies, lovely shark-skins, a bevy of beauties in washing silk, etc., etc. all for the most reasonable prices, in itself enough to justify us . . . but listen to this . . . in addition—25% off all that!

When knighthood was in flower and a lady eloped with her lover, she wore a sweeping cavalier hat with ostrich plumes. To-day, the lovely ladies buy their hats at MAYO'S SHOPPE. Although they can't guarantee an elopment, they can guarantee an exciting time for every occasion. MAYO'S choose their hats with a great deal of care so that you can be sure that only the best of the new styles are represented in their popular shop. They have received a new shipment of those reasonably-priced cotton dresses and they want me to tell you that now they have large sizes again.

Three cheers for NOXZEMA ! It is certainly one of the greatest discoveries ever made. If hubby comes home with tired and aching feet, Johnny burns his finger or baby is worried with rash—I just say NOXZEMA! All good Dispensaries sell it. HAMPSHIRE ESCAPE DEFEAT

Game Of Fluctuating Fortunes

BERRY AND BOYES SHINE

London, Yesterday.

A very interesting match was seen at Leicester, where Hampshire, after dismissing the home county for 62 runs in the first innings and then securing a lead of 78 runs, found themselves fighting hard to avoid a collapse when they took fourth lease of the wicket, Leicester having in the meantime staged a remarkable recovery, thanks mainly to a century by Berry who scored 143 runs. This, incidentally, is his second three-figure innings of the season, his first being 106 against Oxford University about two weeks ago.

Boyes, the Hampshire all-rounder, was responsible for Leicester's collapse in their first knock, taking 5 wickets for 12 runs, but good though this performance is, it is not the best this season, Verity claiming the honour with 9 for 12 against Kent at Sheffield on May 23.

Results of the mid-week programme, as cabled by Reuter, follow:—

At Northampton, Northants took first innings points from Essex.
Essex: 150 (V. W. C. Jupp 6 for 60) and 344 for 8 dec. (Nichols 101).
Northants: 253 and 133 for 5.

At Leicester, Hampshire took first innings points from the home county.
Leicester: 62 (Boyes 5 for 12) and 334 for 9 dec. (Berry 143).
Hampshire: 140 and 147 for 5.

At the Oval, Surrey drew with Cambridge University.
Cambridge: 359 (N. W. D. Yardley 116 not out) and 107 for 4.
Surrey: 291 (Fishlock 128).
No play yesterday owing to rain.

At Liverpool, Lancashire beat Kent by two wickets.
Kent: 164 and 183.
Lancashire: 131, and 218 for 8 (Watt 6 for 65).

At Worthing, Sussex beat Oxford University by an innings and 26 runs.
Sussex: 424 (A. Melville 142, Harry Parks 159.
Oxford: 226 and 172.

At Chesterfield, Derby beat Worcester by three wickets.
Worcester: 233 (Gibbons 99, Copson 5 for 34) and 162.
Derby: 247 and 149 for 7.

At Nottingham, Notts beat Warwick by an innings and 101 runs.
Notts: 435 (Hardstaff 121, Lilley 124).
Warwick: 98 (Staples 5 for 13) and 236.

Middlesex: 317 (Hendren 100) and 329.
Gloucester: 249.
There was no play on Friday owing to rain.

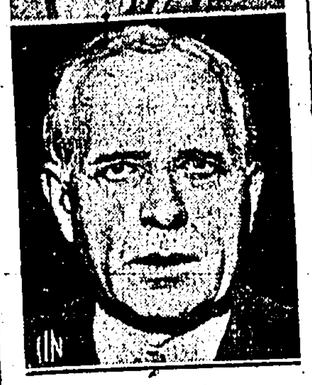
EARLIER RESULT

At Bath, Yorkshire beat Somerset by an innings and 152 runs.
Yorkshire: 302 (Barber 92, Smailes 80, Verity 89).
Somerset: 146 (Bowes, 5 for 32) and 94, Bowes (4 for 29).

DEAF AND DUMB HERO

The Scouts' Silver Cross for Gallantry has been awarded to a deaf and dumb Rover Scout, George Biddle, aged 24, of Glasgow, for bravery in rescuing a woman from drowning in the Clyde.

This remarkable picture, radioed from London, shows H.H. the Aga Khan's Mahmoud as the colt flashed across the finishing line in the 158th running of the Derby at Epsom Downs. Charlie Smirke, the jockey who had been banished for questionable riding, then reinstated in 1934, rode the heartbreaking mile and a half course in 2 minutes, 33 4/5 seconds, one-fifth of a second under the previous record he had set on Windsor Lad in 1934. The Aga Khan is the first owner since 1895 to win two successive runnings of the Derby. His Bahram romped home an easy winner last year.



Senator William E. Borah's radio attack on conservative Eastern leaders of the Republican party, J. Henry Roraback (top) of Connecticut and Charles D. Hilles (below) of New York, is being interpreted by observers as a challenge to the G. O. P. to strike out the domination of financial and corporate interests.

Lee Wai-tong, China's soccer idol, had five goals to his credit, while Tam Kong-pak (2) and Suen Kam-shun accounted for the remainder.

Cheung Chau Notes

Cheung Chau, Friday.—Mr. Aw Boon Bar, accompanied by Mr. Morris and Mrs. Langley of the St. John Ambulance Brigade, paid his first visit to the local hospital to-day. He is the brother of Mr. Aw Boon Haw, who provided the funds for this fine building.

Although some of our military friends have been in residence for a month or more, the first of the regular visitors arrived yesterday. Our old friend Mrs. Franklin returned last week from an interesting tour in India. Other houses will soon be occupied.

The local dragon-boat races were held with the usual interest and excitement on the King's birthday. I understand that a collision between one of the boats and an outgoing ferry was narrowly averted.

Progress is being made with several local buildings.—Our Own Correspondent.

LONG-DISTANCE CANOEIST ASHORE

Harold Fenn, a 23-year-old Londoner, who intends to travel to Australia in an 18ft. canoe, was driven ashore last month at Ramsgate.

GOLF AT THE VALLEY

Goldman And Bishop Win Final

L. Goldman (7) and C. W. E. Bishop (13) won the Royal Hong Kong Golf Club Happy Valley Summer Foursomes yesterday when they beat N. Mayhew (11) and H. H. Pethick (11) 4 and 3.

Huge columns of smoke curled upward as roaring flames devoured the southern New Jersey pine belt near Tuckerton, destroying everything in their path last month. Early reports set the death toll at five, with a score missing. JAPANESE Y.M.A. SEEK REVENGE

PUI CHING'S BIG TASK

TWO MATCHES TO-DAY

The Japanese Young Men's Association, smarting under the huge defeat inflicted on them by Pui Ching at their last meeting, are determined to prevent a repetition and are even confident that they will not only keep the score to within a small margin but that they will be able to turn the tables on the Chinese in their return Baseball League encounter at Causeway Bay to-day.

After this game the Volunteers will receive the hardest test they have had this season and it is difficult to forecast the result with any amount of certainty.

In the first game Pui-ching will probably start with the same line-up as yesterday and J. Chock will assist in the pitching. The Japanese will again rely on Mikuni for their pitching, and his slow twirlers have never been appreciated by Pui-ching.

The Volunteers do not contemplate any changes in their line-up. The first base is between Costa, who is slightly injured, and Abbas, while the third base will be given to Hussain. The only change in the field is Hassan, who will take the place of Pereira.

If Bowen is able to produce the same form as last week he will be retained throughout the game, but at the least sign of his breaking up Pereira will be brought in in his place.

The Volunteers will depend on their hitting to pull them through, but unless they hit safely there is little chance of scoring against the accurate Pui Ching fielders.

M. Leon Blum, the French Premier, appointed Madame Irene Curie Joliot, daughter of Madame Curie and herself a Nobel prize winner, to a high administrative post in the French Republic last month. She is the first woman ever to hold public office in France, where women have not been granted the ballot.

REFUGE FROM THE HEAT

Half-Holiday On The Beaches

SUCCESSFUL DINNER DANCE AT THE LIDO

Hong Kong was again favoured with bright, sunny weather for the half-holiday yesterday, and the holiday crowds were in the best of spirits despite the intense heat. The highest temperature recorded at the Royal Observatory was 88.0 deg. F. at noon, and the lowest was 80.8 deg. F., the latter reading being taken as early as 5 a.m. Towards the evening, however, it became definitely cooler, which proved extremely welcome.

With the exception of the lawn bowlers, the entire sporting community repaired to one or other of the beaches in Hong Kong and Kowloon, the Repulse Bay Lido proving the great attraction. A large number of people went out there and many stayed behind for the dinner dance, which was again a great success.

Shek-O, South Beach, Stanley, Tweed Bay and Big Wave Bay also attracted many bathers, while on the Kowloon side Castle Peak and the others beaches in the vicinity were also thronged with holiday-makers.

Another enjoyable day is promised to-day, the weather forecast, issued by the Royal Observatory last night, being "East winds, moderate, fair."

OVERSEAS CHINESE DEFEATED

100 Per Cent. Record Shattered

VISITORS GIVE GRAND BATTING DISPLAY

Pui-Ching registered the first shut out game of the season when they beat the Overseas Chinese by 11 runs in their Baseball League encounter at Causeway Bay and, incidentally, smashed the 100 per cent record of the Chinese.

Pui-Ching owe their success to their brilliant fielding and the manner they hit when at bat. C. King pitched throughout the game and the manner in which he was backed up by his fielders can be seen when he only struck three men out during the game and limited the opponents to only two scattered hits.

T. Kim was very prominent at short stop, where he covered well and was always on the alert for double play. W. Woo, at first base, was safe, while B. Wong caught the eye in fielding several fast grounders, while his throwing to first was accurate, though he was at fault on one occasion when he was high.

The batting of Pui-Ching was the best seen this season. H. Ong hit a home run in the second innings. The generally reliable pitching of W. Ching and Al. Chang held no terrors for them and they gathered no less than 10 hits during the game.

The fielding of the Overseas Chinese was not up to its usual standard—there were a number of errors in the field, while there did not seem to be that "go" in the team which has always been associated with it.

M. Chang played at first base but did not do much with the bat, though he was safe in the field.

UNDER-SEA CANYON OFF NEW YORK

New Aid For Navigation

New York.

A submarine canyon 45 miles long and at one point 3,000ft deeper than the surrounding ocean bed has been discovered at the entrance to New York harbour by the Hydrographic Survey ship Oceanographer. It marks the course of the River Hudson in prehistoric times.

When the canyon has been fully charted it is expected to be of great assistance to navigators entering and leaving the harbour in fog. By following the depression incoming vessels will be guided safely to Sandy Hook.

"NO FLAG BUT RED FLAG"

Oxford's "Publicity Seekers"

UNION IN TROUBLE AGAIN

The resolution passed by the Oxford Union last month, "That this House recognises no flag but the Red flag," has caused keen resentment among Oxford undergraduates, and there is a feeling among the vast majority that the political tendency of the University has been misrepresented.

Normally the Union debates every Thursday. To allow more speakers to air their views the practice has been adopted lately of adjourning the debate until the Friday. Such was the case on the occasion when the motion was carried, the attendance being extremely low.

The normal attendance at Union debates is about 400. On this occasion there were only 124. Of those 67 were professed Communists, and the motion was carried by 10 votes.

Oxford Incensed

Oxford is incensed that 67 "publicity seekers" and "cranks," as they are called, should have been allowed to assume responsibility for expressing the views of the Union and indirectly of the University.

Some idea of how misleading publicity for the passing of such a motion may be, can be drawn from the following statistics: There are roughly 4,000 male students at Oxford. Of those 1,500 have paid subscriptions to the University Conservative Association, 250 to the Liberals and 600 to the Labour. The Labour Club includes those members of the October Club, the Communist organisation, which was disbanded owing to lack of support.

Of the 4,000 undergraduates it is estimated that well over 3,000 would vote for a National candidate had they the right to vote. That resolution, therefore, passed by a handful is, generally speaking, regarded as being of the utmost insignificance.

POST OFFICE PROFITS

Amazing Figures Quoted

LARGE INCREASES SHOWN

London, Yesterday.

Major Tryon, the Postmaster-General, last night announced that the results of the financial year just to hand constituted a record in Post Office history. In spite of the reductions in the parcel post rates the profit on the postal services had increased from £10,900,000 to £11,250,000. Though telephone rates and charges had been continuously revised and reduced, a new record in telephone profit had been achieved, with a figure of £1,900,000. The total Post Office income had reached the unprecented figure of £80,000,000, in spite of an increase of over £2,000,000 in wages.

Side by side with the extended use of mechanical and labour-saving devices additional employment had been created for approximately 11,000 people in the Post Office alone, and for many thousands more in outside industries associated with it. The Post Office commercial profits had reached the high total of £12,250,000, as compared with £11,945,000 last year.

The only deficit was on telegraphs, which had increased to £900,000 as compared with £650,000 last year.—British Wireless Service.

EXPLANATION OF TO-DAY'S CARTOON

The Drowned Man Who Lived

ONE of the most notable cases of resuscitation of the drowned in the history of the Coast Guard, was the restoration of Robert Mooney, a blacksmith of Wakefield, Rhode Island, July 4, 1906.

Mooney and two other men were in a flat-bottomed skiff, under sail, when it capsized. The swinging boom hit Mooney on the head, knocked him unconscious and pitched him headlong under the sail, which submerged. It was 35 minutes before his companions and Coast Guard surfmen extricated him, all of which time he had been under water.

Coast Guard life savers immediately set to work and the first sign of life was observed an hour and twenty minutes later, when a heated stone was applied to Mooney's bare feet. They kept up constant rubbing, artificial respiration and the application of heated stones to the extremities, armpits and over the heart, and 25 minutes later heart action began. Nine hours after the accident, Mooney regained consciousness.

Mr. Mooney now lives in Wakefield, R. I., also the home of George Streeter, Charles Whaley and James Moore, the Coast Guardsmen who are credited with saving his life.

THIS IS A DAILY FEATURE IN "THE CHINA MAIL"

Mr. Ll. George's New Role

Mr. Lloyd George is to adjudicate in this year's school handwriting contest organised by Harrods Ltd., of Knightsbridge. Last year's adjudicator was the Duke of York.

This is the eighth year of the contest, the popularity of which has been steadily growing. Last year more than 72,000 children competed from about 3,000 schools.

There are two silver challenge shields—a senior and a junior—to be competed for by teams of 11 school children. Book prizes are awarded for the best individual efforts and to the teachers of the winning teams.

The passage to be written this year is the following from Milton's "Areopagitica:"

"Methinks I see in my mind a noble and puissant nation rousing herself like a strong man after sleep, and shaking her invincible locks; methinks I see her as an eagle mewing her mighty youth and kindling her undazzled eyes at the full midday beam."

The contest is open to all schools, and there is no entrance fee.

THE TEST

A crowd of 6,000 was present when G. O. Allen, the England captain won the toss and decided to send the tourists in to bat on a wicket which promised to improve with the weather.

Allen's decision caused some surprise, especially after the omission of Gover, the Surrey fast bowler, from the team.

The teams are:

England:—G. O. Allen (Middlesex) (captain), R. E. S. Wyatt (Warwick), R. W. V. Robins (Middlesex), M. J. Turnbull (Glamorgan), Leyland (Yorkshire), Verity (Yorkshire), Mitchell (Yorkshire), Duckworth (Lancashire), Gimblett (Somerset), James Langridge (Sussex) and Hardstaff (Nottingham).

Hart (Middlesex) is the twelfth man.

All India:— Maharajahkumar of Vizianagram (captain), Major C. K. Naidu, Wazir Ali, P. E. Palia, Amar Singh, Jehangir Khan, Mohammed Nissar, V. M. Merchant, D. R. Hindlekar, Mushtaq Ali, and C. S. Naidu.

Twelfth man: S. Banerjee.

CAUTIOUS OPENING

Merchant and Hindlekar, who opened the Indian innings, started very cautiously and received no encouragement from Allen, Wyatt, Langridge, Robins and Verity, who were very capably supported by an alert field. The half-century, however, was hoisted without loss, causing grave doubts regarding Allen's policy, but at 62, after 90 minutes' play, Allen bowled Merchant neck and crop with a ball that nipped off the pitch liked greased lightning. In the same over he had Mushtaq Ali caught in the slips by Langridge for a "duck."

HINDLEKAR BOWLED

Inspired by this success, Robins broke through Hindlekar's defence and sent him back to the pavilion with 26 to his credit, including three boundaries

Major C. K. Naidu, of whom so much was expected, badly disappointed when he stepped in front of a straight one from Allen after scoring only a single—64-4-1.

Allen at this period had taken 3 wickets for 1 run in 11 balls as the result of inspired bowling.

97 FOR 5 AT LUNCH

The Indian collapse was partially stopped by Amar Singh and Wazir Ali, but just as both appeared to be settling down the former was well-taken by Langridge off Robins. 85-5-12.

Lunch was taken with the score at 97 for 5, Wazir Ali being 11 and Palia 8.

EARLY THRILL

A crowd of 15,000 was present after lunch and were given an early thrill when Allen knocked back Wazir Ali's middle stump with his second ball—97—6—11.

Palia was out 10 runs later, being brilliantly caught at fine leg by Mitchell off Verity. The eighth wicket fell after another dozen runs, Jehangir Khan, the Cambridge Blue, being beaten by a yorker from Allen.

The Marahajkumar of Vizianagram offered a bold front, scoring three boundaries in his 19, but could not get anyone to stay with him, C. S. Naidu being out to a one-handed catch by Wyatt at cover point and Mohammed Nissar being stumped off Verity. The innings thus closed for 147 after 180 minutes play.

Allen returned the very creditable figures of 5 for 35 in 17 overs.

DISASTROUS START

England started disastrously against Amar Singh, who was bowling at his fastest and was swerving very dangerously. At one period he had the following analysis:—

O. M. R. W.
9 5 13 4

Mitchell, wh opened the innings with Gimblett, was the only English batsman to offer any resistance to the fast bowler, but he also fell a victim to him after scoring only 14 runs.

Gimblett, who had scored 11 out of the 19 runs added for the first wicket, was taken in the slips by Mushtaq Ali, Turnbull was bowled at the same total and Mitchell returned to the pavilion 14 runs later.

R. E. S. Wyatt, the former England captain, was dismissed for a "duck" when Jehangir Khan brought off a nice catch in the slips. Thus four wickets had fallen for 34 runs.

SURPRISE EXCLUSION

Gover has been one of the most consistent bowlers so far this season and has come off in almost every match. He has shown such good form that it was taken for granted that he would find a place in the team while he had also been mentioned as a probability for the Australian tour. His best feats for the season are:

5 for 40 v Gloucester
6 for 61 v Hampshire
5 for 63 v Derby
5 for 47 and 5 for 44 v Somerset
6 for 33 and 6 for 46 v Essex
6 for 55 v Notts
5 for 58 v Worcestor

C. S. Naidu Called To Rescue

The Maharajkumar of Vizianagram, the Indian captain, owing to unforeseen circumstances, was forced to send for C. S. Naidu, who left Bombay by air and arrived in England on June 18.

Naidu is a brother of Major C. K. Naidu, the famous all-rounder, who already belongs to the side. C. S. Naidu is a googly bowler and a forcing batsman.

He played in two Tests during the M.C.C. visit to India under D. R. Jardine in 1933-4.

TEST UMPIRES

F. Walden (Northamptonshire) and A. Dolphin (Yorkshire) are umpiring the Test now in progress.

A Noble Marriage In Old China

ELABORATE BETROTHAL CEREMONIES

THE BRIDE'S ENTRY INTO HER NEW HOME

(By PHYLLIS JUBY)

THE master of the house of the young boy communicates with the master of the house of the young girl to make the request of marriage. His words descend, because a young man is above a young girl. On the arrival of the messenger, the officer whose duty it is receive the guests in the young girl's home comes before his lord, and makes the request in these terms:

"My lord, you are kind. I beg you to give a daughter in marriage to such-and-such a man. His father is busy performing the ceremonies in honour of his ancestors. Not able to come in person, he has sent a messenger to make the request and offer the presents."

The young girl's father answers: "My daughter is lacking in intelligence and common sense. She is not able to receive even a little instruction. My lord requests her: I myself do not dare to refuse." Thus the ceremonies are begun.

The Second Visit

THEN presents are sent. The messenger comes holding a live goose in his hands, for the goose knows how to detect the seasons of the year, the light and shade, the principles of the two sexes. The master of the house of the young girl has a mat stretched on the western side of the temple hall where the tablet of his deceased father is placed. The mat is turned to the west and on the right of the mat is a stool. This mat and this stool are for the spirit who comes to assist at the ceremony. The messenger, dressed in a long black robe, arrives at the main door of the young girl's home, and the officer whose duty it is to receive the guests comes out and asks him the reason of his visit. The master of the house, dressed in the same manner as the stranger, comes to greet him outside the door and, kneeling, bows twice before him. Arriving at the main door of the temple they bow to each other and enter. At three different places they bow and at the foot of the steps they invite each other three times to go up. Only after various other salutations does the messenger, facing eastward, give his message. He announces that according to the tortoise and the milfoil stalks the marriage will be a happy one.

Ritual Presents

THE presents offered to the young girl's father are five pieces of black silk, five pieces of brown silk and two deer skins, which must be of good quality, a salted hare, which must be new, and vegetables and meat, which must be perfect. The fish must be a little carp, for the carp is the symbol of mutual assistance. These gifts are received in the hall where the tablet of the master's deceased father is placed. The messenger does not say that his presents are of little value; the master of the house does not say that the messenger has condescended to come to his home. On this occasion these expressions of pure politeness are not allowed.

The young girl, betrothed, receives a hairpin, and presents are made to her. In ceremony she is given a new name. Her father offers advice: "Beware. Be careful. From morning to evening do not transgress the orders of the father and mother of your husband." The mother, tying a piece of linen to her daughter's dress, says: "Be diligent and attentive from morning to evening. Be careful to carry out the orders of your mother-in-law in accomplishing the duties which are imposed on the women of the women's apartment."

Wedding Ceremonies

ON a fixed day the nuptial ceremonies begin. Three cauldrons, facing north, are placed outside the main door of the young boy's private apartments. The most distinguished of these contains a young pig without its toes, and two pairs of lungs which will be presented to the young couple, two ribs taken from a pig's back, and two pairs of lungs which will be offered to the spirits. The second cauldron contains fourteen fish, the third a dried hare. The hips of the animals are not placed in the cauldrons, as they are considered too vile. Two big jars are placed at the foot of the oriental walls, the one containing water to the west of the one containing wine. A rough hempen cloth covers them, and on each a spoon is placed, its handle turned towards the south.

The fiance, wearing a skin cap in the shape of a sparrow's head, an inner coat brown with black border, gets into a carriage painted in black varnish. Two other carriages follow behind. It is dark. Men walk in front of the horses carrying torches. The carriages stop at the main door of the young girl's home.

The young girl, her head made ornate with false hair, her dress a silk tunic of single colour, is standing in the lateral wing, her face turned towards the south. Her governess, wearing on her head a silk band fixed with pins, and dressed in a tunic with a little mantle of flowered silk, stands on her right. Her companions wear black dresses, a silk band fixed with pins on the head. Over their dresses they wear mantles ornamented with axes painted in black and white. These companions are sisters or cousins of the bride who go with her to join the harem.

The master of the house greets the young boy at the main door with various salutation. Then he enters, the boy following with a young goose in his hands. Arriving at the main door of the temple they bow to each other three times.

The Bride Goes Home

WEDDED, the couple take their leave, and the young man hands the end of a rope to his wife to help her into the carriage. Her governess refuses, saying the bride is not yet deserving of such an honour. She gets into the carriage at length by means of a stool held by attendants. The governess puts a cloak round her shoulders to protect her from dust. The young man starts the horses and when the carriage has done three turns of the wheel, the driver takes his place. He goes to his own carriage, and drives on ahead to await his bride at the main door of his own house. When she arrives he salutes her with bows and leads her to the door of the private apartments. There the bride's companions and the bridegroom's companions together present water to them to wash their hands. Then food is brought and placed according to the rites. The husband, with a deep bow, invites his wife to approach the mat which has been prepared. Both kneel down on their mats and worship the spirits, offering the vegetables and meat, the two kinds of millet and the lungs. The servants place the glutinous millet near them on the mat. This they eat. Then the servants present the lungs and the back ribs. They offer them to the spirits and then eat these two foods with meat juice and sauce. Wine is brought and presented with salutations. Then a liver is offered to the couple. They shake it and offer it to the spirits, then taste it lightly with the end of their lips and put it in the jar containing the vegetables.

The wife returns to her seat which is to the west of the jar, the servants take the food away, and the husband goes out of the hall, taking off his coat in the lateral wing and handing it to one of the wife's servants. The wife takes off her coat in the hall and one of the husband's servants receives it. Then she retires to rest on a mat in the south-west corner. The husband's mat is placed in the east corner. He enters, and he himself takes the ribbon from his wife's headdress. The torches are taken away.

The Bridegroom's Parents

THE next day husband and wife rise early. The woman washes her hair and then all her body. She binds her hair with a silk band fixed with pins, puts on a dress with a silk mantle and waits to be presented to her parents-in-law. At dawn a servant introduces her to them in their private apartments. She enters the main door, holding in her hand a basket containing jujubes and chestnuts. Going forward, she kneels down before her father-in-law and places the basket on his mat. He, kneeling, places his hand on the basket, then rises up and renders the salute. The bride receives another basket, this time containing slices of dried meat and spices, and, bowing before her mother-in-law, she places it on her mat. The mother-in-law kneels, takes the basket and gets up, handing it to an officer. Then the parents-in-law, amidst much ceremony, offer a repast.

When this is over, the father-in-law offers a meal to the officers who have escorted the bride. Wine is presented twice. The second time it is not taken, but instead the officers make a gift of five pieces of flowered silk of different colours to the father-in-law. The mother-in-law does the same and receives the same gift.

Should it be that the parents-in-law are no longer living, the new bride, three months after her arrival, offers vegetables to their spirits in ceremony.

DOCTOR'S AFRICAN "REST CURE"

15,000 Miles' Journey In Ford V-8

FROM INDIAN OCEAN TO MEDITERRANEAN

AS a rest cure after nine years of research work in the Cavendish Laboratory at the University of Cambridge, Dr. William L. Webster drove a Ford V-8 15,000 miles across Africa. On this solo jaunt, which took him from Nairobi, in Kenya Colony, East Africa, through the dark Belgian Congo and across the vast Sahara, he traversed a comparatively unknown route.

The fact that Dr. Webster drove his Ford from the Indian Ocean to the Mediterranean without serious misadventure is evidence that the hardships, dangers and mysteries of darkest Africa are slowly but surely losing their significance. Nevertheless some of the exciting experiences revealed in the doctor's diary of the journey show that the trip was by no means simple. In fact, the success was due in large measure to two factors—a competent man and a reliable car.

10,000 Feet Altitude

Dr. Webster's diary, which he courteously placed at the disposal of Ford Motor Company officials, and details revealed in which have just reached Hong Kong, relates that on leaving Nairobi, for years the jumping-off place for big-game hunters in East Africa, on December 27, he drove north and west through the great Rift Valley, a semi-civilised district west of which rises the Molo-Mau Plateau with an altitude of 9,000 to 10,000 feet. This magnificent open rolling country, with woods scattered about, is the great wheat-growing centre of East Africa.

Continuing west, Dr. Webster's route led him along the shores of famous Lake Victoria to Kampala, where preparations were made for plunging into the wildest section of the mysterious continent, the Belgian Congo.

River Beds, Marshes, Grass!

There were roads of a sort through the region between Nairobi and Kampala, but from there on the journey was traversed on dry river-beds, through marshes and grass that towered over the car, and over native footpaths. Road directions were obsolete and practically worthless.

The rest stations, or native inns, where overnight stops were made, were usually nothing more than rude wood and clay huts. Often these rest stations offered the traveller little besides food and a roof for shelter. Bananas, a main part of the diet, usually could be purchased for the equivalent of one cent gold a bunch. Of one night spent in a native rest station Dr. Webster recorded in his diary: "Our sleep was disturbed only by the visits of a grunting pig and a stray dog that entered the room unbidden in search of food."

Camel Path Across Sahara

Through the dark Congo jungle travel was difficult and many rivers were crossed each day. These streams varied in width from five yards to a quarter-mile and the cost of native ferry service was always 10 francs. After Dr. Webster and his Ford had crossed the Bomu River on a Belgian ferry into French Equatorial Africa, the jungle began to thin and preparations were made for the drive across the Sahara.

The trail over the desert was nothing more than a camel path, almost impassable at times as a result of sandstorms. Often the

BRIDGE NOTES

By Lt.-Col. WALTER BULLER, C.B.E.

BLUFF BRIDGE BIDS

THE British Bridge League Congress held recently at Bexhill-on-Sea was an outstanding success.

Players from all parts of England and Scotland and Wales assembled in large numbers, but I regret to record that the Bridge, or most of it, was of very poor quality. It is undoubtedly a fact that the bidding of the "system" players is becoming worse and worse.

The use of the artificial convention known as the Negative One No Trumps is becoming more widespread.

This, as many of my readers know, is an arrangement to enable the opener to underbid his hand.

This is what they do: bidding "one" on a big hand in the assurance that the partner will respond with "One No Trumps" on practically nothing. This one convention alone is enough to stifle any dormant card-sense a player may have.

Here is an illustration from the Pairs event played at the Congress:

Z, fourth in hand, opened the bidding with "One Heart" whereupon her partner bid "One No Trumps" on:

S—Q, Kn
H—Kn, 9, 8, 6.
D—Kn.
C—K, 10, 7, 4, 3, 2.

There is a singleton diamond, a doubleton in spades, and excellent support for the heart bid. Absolutely false information is given by the bid of "One No Trumps," and one round of bidding is lost.

Z-Y were vulnerable, and therefore Z's opening meant reasonable strength. In these circumstances Y should have bid "Three Hearts."

To any card player, there is a good chance here for game in hearts and game in hearts would have been made.

What happened was that Z, assuming that her partner had very little, and no support in hearts, passed and they played it in "One No Trumps," in which declaration they were one down.

That this sort of thing is not confined to the weaker players was shown when Mr. Leslie Dodds, playing for Mr. Lederer's team in the semi-finals of the Gold Cup, bid "One No Trumps" on hand 1, over his partner's opening of "One spade" on:

S—10, 7, 3.
H—9, 7, 6, 2.
D—10, 9, 7, 3.
C—Kn, 8.

If this was intended as a bluff it was a very bad one. If the opener (Mr. S. Koski) has a good hand, he may now well bid "Three No Trumps," in which case a loss of 900 would be a suitable penalty.

Not exactly the right way to begin an important match!

What happened was that Koski bid "Two Clubs" and was three down undoubled.

The following hand, taken from the semi-finals of the Gold Cup, illustrates how these "system" players fail on the bid hands:

	S 10 3 H 10 8 6 2 D 7 4 2 C Q 10 6 4
S Q 8 7 5 H A K Q Kn 9 3 D Q 9 5 C Nil		S A K 6 4 2 H 5 D A Kn 8 6 C K 7 3
	S Kn 9 H 7 4 D K 10 3 C A Kn 9 8 5 2

Z Y vulnerable, Dealer A.

The way to bid this hand, as laid down in my recently published book is:—

A, "Two Hearts" (1); B, "Three Spades" (2); A, "Five Spades" (3); B, "Six Diamonds" (4); A, "Seven Spades" (5).

(1) An obvious "Two" opening.

(2) When partner can open with a "Two" bid this is a very strong hand. Its strength is shown by the jump bid.

(3) The previous bid suits so well that a strong slam invitation is issued.

(4) Spades having been "agreed," B conveys the inference that he has the sort of strength in diamonds (i.e., immediate control) which will be useful in a slam contract.

5) Betting on a certainty.

Although I can see all four hands, I suggest that no real card players should fail to bid the grand slam in spades.

Here is how the semi-finalists and finalists dealt with it:

Semi-Finalists.

1. A. (Mrs. Eames, Liverpool) "One Heart."
   B. (Mrs. Harmer, Liverpool) "Two Spades."
   A. "Three Spades," B. "Four No Trumps."
   A. "Five Hearts," B. "Five Spades," A. "Six Spades."
2. A. (Reeve, Liverpool) "One Heart."
   B. (Lock, Liverpool) "Two Spades."
   A. "Three Hearts," B. "Four Diamonds."
   A. "Five Spades," B. "Six Spades."

Finalists.

3. A. (Lederer) "Three Hearts," B. (Rose) "Three Spades."
   A. "Six Hearts."
4. A. (Hughes) "Four Hearts," B. (Ingram) "No Bid."

Lederer's bid of "Six Hearts" offends against first principles, for it is invariably better to play in a trump suit which is distributed between the two hands than in a trump suit which is stacked in one hand.

Moreover, "Six Hearts" is a "hit or miss" bid if ever there was one. From Lederer's point of view there was no reason to suppose that opponents could not start off with two diamond tricks.

Hughes's bid of "Four Hearts" baffles description, as also does Ingram's pass over it.

road was completely obliterated by drifting sand dunes and progress was frequently slowed while camel caravans moved off the road. Distances of 100 miles or more often separated oases or government stations. During the entire journey across the trackless wastes of the Sahara the only automobile trouble encountered was a tyre puncture.

First Tub In Two Months

On February Dr. Webster reached El Golea, outlying symbol of civilisation on the northern edge of the Sahara, where he enjoyed the comfort of a bath-tub of hot water in the Hotel Transatlantique, the first since Nairobi. A few days later he drove into Algiers, on the Mediterranean, after a journey of two months across the darkest sections of dark Africa.

A large part of the success of this undertaking depended on the car, and Dr. Webster's Ford V-8 gave unusual service. The Ford body was a type unknown outside Africa. Developed and built in Nairobi to meet the exacting needs of explorers, scientists and big-game hunters, it is known as the "Safari" or "Kenya" body. Dr. Webster reports of his Ford V-8:—"It gave me not a moment's trouble or worry on the whole journey." He took the car to Canada and drove it to his father's home in Sheldiac.

Fred is not disheartened by his defeat in the French championship by Baron von Cramm.

"It is not that I have lost my interest in tennis or my enthusiasm for it. I merely could not concentrate as I did formerly."

GERMAN LAW ON INDEBTEDNESS
NEW PROVISIONS OUTLINED

"SUNDAY HERALD" SPECIAL
Berlin, Yesterday.

The following are the main provisions of the law on indebtedness in foreign currencies promulgated at the Cabinet session yesterday:

If a loan in foreign currency is contracted in a foreign country— whether with or without a "gold clause" —then in the event of the devaluation of the currency in question the obligation of the debtor is limited to the amount in the depreciated currency.

Valid court decisions do not affect the operation of this law. Agreements reached after the devaluation are not affected by this law. Payments already made cannot be reclaimed under this law.

The Reichsminister for Justice, in accord with the Reichsminister for Finance and the Reichsminister for Economics, will issue the requisite decrees for the execution and connetence of this law.—Trans-Ocean Service.

EFFECT OF SANCTIONS

London: Speaking in Belfast last night Captain Euan Wallace, Parliamentary Secretary to the Department of Overseas Trade, said that economic sanctions did not mean the same thing to all countries. Britain's trade with Italy from March 1935 to March of the current year disappeared almost to vanishing point. That of Switzerland dwindled by only 48 per cent. Argentina's trade with Italy actually showed an increase during the same period.

They had also learned that a single aggressor was always armed and ready before he started to aggress. For that reason the forces of the League must be adequate not only to defeat him at the end of a long campaign but at the very offset.

AT GENEVA

Although private conversations will continue between the chief delegates at Geneva during the week-end no further meeting of the League Council has been summoned. To-day's meeting was mainly devoted to purely informal discussion of the reform of the League, which was raised by the Chilean representative. After some debate it was generally agreed that the proper course would be to await the Assembly views.—British Wireless Service.

VIEWPOINT OF ITALY
"MR. TAFARI'S FLIGHT
Relinquishment Of Government
"TOOK TO HIS HEELS IN COWARDLY MANNER"

"SUNDAY HERALD" SPECIAL

Rome, Yesterday.

The legality of the further participation of Abyssinia in the League of Nations session is disputed in political quarters and the press here, which openly demand the exclusion of the country from the League of Nations, since the Abyssinian Government "no longer exists."

Thus the semi-official "Giornale d'Italia" refers to Anthony Eden's statement in the House of Commons, that the Abyssinian Government "has ceased to exist, and adds that the "so-called Abyssinian delegation" has therefore no longer authority to speak on behalf of the population, which has already rendered to Italy. The delegation also could not claim to speak on behalf of the Negus, who, by leaving Abyssinian territory, relinquished the reins.

POLAND RAISES SANCTIONS

Warsaw: A Council of Ministers has ordered the raising of sanctions against Italy.—Reuter.

Government, Ras Nasibu, the paper, consequently represents himself and the memory of the defunct Abyssinian Government.

EXISTENCE DENIED

The Corriere della Sera likewise doubts whether the League of Nations is obliged to concern itself with the claims of "Ras Tafari," since such procedure is neither in accord with its dignity nor justified from a juridical viewpoint.

"Abyssinia no longer exists. Taking his cashbox with him, the ruler in cowardly manner took to his heels because his subjects had surrendered to Italy. No one therefore has legal authority to appoint a new delegation to the League of Nations. Whether the so-called Abyssinian delegation authoritatively represents Abyssinia will therefore have to be examined by the League, but there can be no doubt as to the eventual decision," concludes the paper.—Trans-Ocean Service.

Negus Sends Note To League

Geneva: The Negus has sent a note to the League declaring that the provisional Government of Western Abyssinia is the only legitimate Government in the country, and that he is determined to defend Abyssinia's rights to the last. The Negus intends to return to the League to supply the provisional Government with munition and money for the prosecution of the war for the independence of Abyssinia.
